Part Or All Of King George's Lung Removed

U.N., RED LIAISON TEAMS MEET

Doctors Voice Anxiety Over His Recovery

All Britain Prays For Frail Monarch

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Royal surgeons cut out all or part of King George's sickly lung today and warned the British people of their anxiety over his recovery.

Nine hours after the operation at Buckingham Palace they reported tonight in post-operation bulletin No. 2:

"The king's condition continues to be as satisfactory as can be expected."

Bulletin No. 1 issued by the eight-man medical team two hours after the operation had said anxiety must prevail for several days but the immediate post-operation condition of the 55-year-old monarch was satisfactory.

The second bulletin added (satisfactory) "as can be expected."

While the devout prayed and anxious crowds milled outside Buckingham Palace, where the operation was performed, eight medical men posted this pencilled bulletin on the palace gate:

"The king underwent an operation for lung resection this morning. Whilst anxiety must remain for some days, his majesty's immediate post-operative condition is satisfactory."

Cancer Is Suggested

London chest surgeons said lung resection could mean amputation of either all or part of the sickly lung.

The bulletin could mean cancer, tuberculosis, a cyst or bronchiectasis—a condition involving a weakening of the bronchial tube carrying air to and from the lung, specialists said.

Some said the speed with which the operation was decided upon suggested cancer.

Hours after the doctors issued their original post-operation bulletin, palace sources would not disclose the nature of the king's ailment beyond the original announcement of structural changes in one lung.

A crowd of several thousand stood outside the palace tonight in respectful silence but police patrols reminded the people from time to time: "No noise." There had been spontaneous cries outside immediately after the operation.

"God save the king!" people in the waiting crowd shouted when the printed bulletin went up.

On Table Two Hours

The gaunt king was on the operating table about two hours in a specially equipped theater on the second floor of his 200-room palace.

A palace spokesman said Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will go ahead with plans to fly to Canada Oct. 2 for a Canadian-U. S. trip unless the king takes a turn for the worse.

Some doctors said surgery may be more dangerous for the king than for most people, because of his history of circulatory troubles. He underwent a spinal nerve operation in March, 1945, to improve the blood circulation to his right leg.

The haggard, gray-faced monarch put up a brave front on the eve of today's surgery. Palace sources said he seemed very happy and fully confident last night.

While the surgeons worked, Queen Elizabeth and their pretty younger daughter, Princess Margaret, waited together in a room near the operating theater.

Atomic Weapon Conversion Plan Appraisal Asked

Affects Defense Bill, Ferguson Declares

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich) told Secretary of Defense Lovett today the whole defense program must be recast if atomic weapons are available for land, sea and air forces.

Ferguson, in a letter, pressed Lovett for a quick appraisal of Sen. McMahon's (D-Conn) proposal to convert the armed forces to atomic weapons at what McMahon said could be an annual saving of $30,000,000,000 in defense costs.

"I want the information before a conference committee meets this week on the $59,500,000,000 defense bill," Ferguson told a reporter. "If McMahon's plan is feasible, the committee ought to know about it before it acts finally on this huge appropriation."

House Voted Less Than Senate

The Senate - House committee faces the task of compromising different versions of the measure, since the House voted the armed services $3,475,000,000 less than the Senate.

Ferguson wrote Lovett that if atomic weapons "are available in the variety and to the degree suggested by Sen. McMahon and are feasible for broad military purposes, they will call for a vast reorientation of our armament program."

McMahon, who heads the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, told the Senate last week the U. S. should scale down the production of small arms and equip its forces with atomic weapons. He said the cost of an a-bomb could be brought down to less than that of a tank by mass production methods.

Ferguson Fears Waste

Ferguson said that if anything of this nature is attempted "not only will new appropriations for the production and training in the use of such weapons be occasioned, but it is clear the entire appropriations structure as it now exists should immediately be recast."

"Otherwise," his letter continued, "it seems obvious the program related to the current appropriation structure—which to my knowledge does not contemplate employment of atomic weapons on the scale forecast by Sen. McMahon's speech —will be completely wasteful and uneconomical."

Four Die In Plunge

Veterans Of Early Korean Fighting Return To Front

CENTRAL KOREAN FRONT, Sept. 15 (Delayed by censor) (AP) — Veterans of the first days of the Korean war have returned to the United Nations battle line and are fighting under new regimental colors.

Soldiers of the old U. S. 34th Infantry Regiment went into the line on the central front yesterday as the nucleus of the U. S. 14th Infantry Regiment—a unit with a distinguished battle history dating back to the American Civil War.

The 34th was the second American regiment to arrive in Korea. It was almost annihilated at Taejon in the tragic campaign on the Naktong River perimeter in July, 1950. It was then a component of the U. S. 24th Division.

Sent back to Japan last January and reorganized, the unit was brought up to full strength.

On Aug. 27 some 400 veterans of the 34th were transferred to the 14th Regiment.

U. S. Eight Army censors would not disclose with what division the 14th Regiment is now serving.

"We are fit and ready to go," said the regimental commander. (Identity withheld by censors.)

"The men are very eager. I expect that within a month we will be by far the best regiment in Korea."

"They feel the odds are on our side now," the commander said. "All we need is a little combat to shake the regiment down."

Yanks Capture Strategic Hill In East Korea

Only Three Reach Crest In Final Drive

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Monday, Sept. 24 (AP)—American infantrymen captured the tallest peak on "Heartbreak Ridge" in Eastern Korea late Sunday in a costly battle with bayonets and hand grenades.

Only three exhausted infantrymen, remnants of a platoon, made it to the crest in the final drive at 6 p. m., (4 a. m., E. S. T.)

Reinforcements followed and helped the three respulse a Korean Red counterattack that came almost immediately.

AP Correspondent Stan Carter, reporting this success in the five-weeks-old battle of the eastern hills, said the Americans then dug in on the narrow, razor-like top as the Communists threw mortar fire from high spurs that jut out from the main mountain mass.

The American battalion that succeeded in taking the hill was reduced to about one-third of its normal size by casualties. (A battalion is normally about 1,000 men.)

13 Men Begin Final Drive

Thirteen men—all that were left of a platoon—(usually 40 men)—began the final drive to the top after four previous storming parties had failed Sunday.

Only three men made it through the Communist mortar fire and hand grenades.

They drove the last of the Reds—themselves the remnants of a battalion—from the crest and crowned the 12th day of the attack on "Heartbreak" with at least a partial victory.

North Koreans stubbornly defended their positions from "suicide bunkers" — so-called because they had only one exit.

Correspondent Carter said the Communists' only way out of the crude but effective log and dirt bunkers imbedded on the slopes of the peak was by fighting out.

Allies Seize Central Peak

Other elements of the American unit held blocking positions north of the hard-fought mountain peak. They withstood a fierce night counter-charge by reinforced Reds earlier. Allied artillery "slashed to ribbons" successive Communist attempts to battle out.

Another Allied unit drove up the slopes of a second massive mountain northwest of Yanggu and west of the Heartbreak Ridge action.

Allied infantry captured a peak southeast of Kumsong, central Red bastion 30 miles north of parallel 38, and killed 467 Chinese in a bloody two-day action. The Eighth Army announced the Red casualties Sunday.

Big Three Open German Talks

BONN, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Big Three powers will start negotiations here tomorrow on a peace contract to grant 48,000,000 West Germans broad new freedoms and a role in the Western defense system.

The Allied high commissioners will meet with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the morning to report on the Washington agreement of the Western foreign ministers.

The ministers instructed the high commissioners to conclude a new compact ending the six-year occupation and bringing the Germans into a military and political partnership with the West.

The negotiations will culminate in a "Little San Francisco" which would make the enemy of World War II the ally of tomorrow.

Wallace Denies Urging Chinese Coalition In '44

Letter Made Public By President Truman

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — President Truman today made public a letter from Henry A. Wallace denying the former vice president recommended a "political coalition" between the Chinese Communists and Nationalists in 1944.

Wallace also denied that John Carter Vincent and Owen Lattimore, who accompanied him on his China mission for the late President Roosevelt, influenced him in writing his recommendations on how best to solidify China against the Japanese who were threatening the whole of East China at the time.

Wallace Disputes Testimony

Wallace wrote Mr. Truman a lengthy letter from his farm at South Salem, N. Y., to "clear up any confusion" as to what he was trying to do in China and to dispute testimony before the Senate Internal Security Committee that Vincent and Lattimore "were relied on by the party leadership to 'guide' me along the (Communist) party line."

He also enclosed a copy of his 1944 report to Mr. Roosevelt, hitherto secret, along with cables he sent to the White House that year from New Delhi, India. He told Mr. Truman he could handle the documents in any way which you deem will best minister to the welfare of the United States."

The White House made them public with a brief letter in which Mr. Truman transmitted them to Vice President Barkley.

Probers Due To Get Papers

"These papers," said Mr. Truman, "deal with certain matters which may be of interest to the Senate and its committees. I am therefore making Mr. Wallace's letter available to you for use in such ways as you deem appropriate." He made no further comment.

Barkley is expected to turn over the documents to the Internal Security Committee headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev). This group has been investigating for weeks the extent of any influence the institute of Pacific Relations, a private research organization, may have had in forming American Far Eastern policy.

"Thrill" Air Shows Ruled Out By CAA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Air shows or exhibitions solely for the sake of thrills henceforth will not be permitted under new Civil Aeronautics Administration policy.

Air races, air meets and similar aeronautical demonstrations, the CAA said in a statement issued over the weekend, will be permitted "only when it is shown that such activities will contribute directly to the advancement of, and public confidence in aviation."

The CAA said the new policy does not rule out air shows entirely but will ban acrobatics not under direct radio control, delayed parachute jumping, dog fighting, "crazy" flying, intentional aircraft crashes, and similar unusual and hazardous types of aircraft operations.

Mother Suspected Of Hugging Infant Daughter To Death

MAYWOOD, Calif., Sept. 23 (AP)—A young mother is suspected of hugging her first-born child so hard that it died.

Mrs. Mildred Ferguson Parson, 25, was arrested yesterday after her husband, Elmer, reported the death of their daughter, Katherine, six months old.

Police Chief William Durham said Mrs. Parson told him she changed the baby's clothes, then picked up the youngster and loved her. When she put Katherine back in the crib, Durham said, the infant was dead.

Mrs. Parson is held in the county jail on suspicion of murder.

It was her first child. An autopsy will be held tomorrow.

Mossadegh Foes Use Dramatics

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 23 (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's opposition in Parliament resorted to dramatics today as the nationalist chief was reported ready to order the expulsion of the last British oil technicians in the next day or two.

Employing tactics Mossadegh himself has used, one weeping deputy resigned because he said the premier's policies were building up British and American opposition to Iran. He warned the government it had better settle the oil crisis now because Conservative Winston Churchill may come to power in the British elections in October.

Another deputy, Mohammed Ali Shushtari, who took refuge in the Parliament building last night, publicly handed to the speaker a sealed envelope which he said contained his will.

"I have received a number of letters threatening me with death," he said. "I have been urging Mossadegh to be moderate, but is it worth it if I received such threats?" He added that he would continue to live in the Parliament building "until the situation is clear."

With tears streaming down his face, 38-year-old Deputy Manuchehr Teymourtash, head of one of Iran's leading families, told the Majlis (lower house) Mossadegh was suppressing opposition to his oil nationalization policies by threats and insults. Handing his resignation to Speaker Reza Hekmat, Teymourtash said he was quitting because he could not tolerate the premier's policies any longer.

Treated Animal Blood Transfusions Reported

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP) — The newspaper Yomiuri reported today a Japanese physician has successfully transfused treated animal blood into the veins of more than 600 human patients.

Dr. Kunio Kawaishi of Hiroshima University Medical School told a meeting of epidemics researchers in Tokyo that he has used the blood of cows, horses and pigs to give transfusions to humans — without any serious after-effects.

The doctor processes the animal blood with small amounts of formalin and caustic soda and also heats the blood.

Republicans Ask Gabrielson-RFC Dealings Inquiry

Probe Chairman Says They Will Get Wish

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Some Republican senators, demanding the scalp of GOP National Chairman Guy Gabrielson, today urged full investigation of the $18,500,000 government loans to a firm he heads.

Sen. Hoey (D-NC), chairman of a Senate investigations sub-committee, announced they will get their wish and quickly.

Gabrielson's Democratic counterpart, William M. Boyle, Jr., already is in hot water with the investigations group, which is probing into his relations with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Boyle Probe Nears End

Hoey said the committee hopes to wind up its investigation of Boyle this week. It will turn promptly, he added, to the RFC loan to Carthage-Hydrocol, Inc., a gasoline refining venture of which Gabrielson is president and general counsel.

Hoey said Democratic Chairman Boyle and Max Siskind, Boyle's former law partner, are among last major witnesses scheduled to be heard in the study of Boyle's connection with American Lithofold Corp., St. Louis printing firm. Boyle has denied he had any connection with $565,000 of RFC loans to the company.

Gabrielson Denies Impropriety

RFC, which had repeatedly refused Lithofold's application, finally granted the loans in 1949 after the firm hired Boyle as its lawyer. He then was the non-salaried Democratic national vice chairman, a post from which he advanced to the chairmanship.

Hoey's subcommittee has dug up testimony that Lithofold used government employes as its salesmen and paid them big fees while handing out gifts of $90 cameras and costly perfumes as "good will gestures" to persons with influence.

Gabrielson made public a letter to Hoey Saturday in which he acknowledged contacts with the RFC but denied they were improper.

"Business Booze" As Tax Deductible Item Threatened

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) said today he will offer an amendment to the tax increase bill to eliminate "business booze" as a tax deductible item under the heading of entertainment.

Douglas said the amendment also would limit business travel expense deductions on income tax returns to $12 a day in an effort to "put a stop to high living at public expense."

The Illinois senator is one of a bloc of 15 senators who are sponsoring 16 amendments designed to add $4,500,000,000 to the additional annual revenue in the pending $5,500,000,000 tax hike measure.

Probers Report Rent "Gouging" Of Servicemen

Local Corrective Action Proposed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Rent "gouging" and sub-standard housing are so widespread around military camps that corrective action must be taken, a Senate subcommittee reported today.

But, it added in a report, the solution must come from the communities.

The report was from the Armed Services Preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Texas), which sent investigators to 16 Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine training camps.

The subcommittee reported conditions found at the camps were similar to those uncovered by the group in an earlier investigation of three installations—Camp Breckenridge, Ky., Fort Leonard 2Wood, Mo., and Camp Rucker, Ala.

Two Investigations Made

Johnson said the first investigation revealed such shocking conditions that a second, more thorough inquiry was made to determine the extent of "this shameful profiteering from American servicemen."

There can be no doubt that it is widespread — so widespread that corrective action must be taken," he said.

"As we state in this report, the ultimate solution must come from the communities themselves. But we must give those communities every legitimate aid within our power."

Johnson said his group will have an open hearing within a few days to give the armed services an opportunity to present recommendations.

NAHB Were Cooperative

The National Association of Home Builders, in a statement on the committee report, called the housing situation around military installations "a national disgrace." It said 25,000 members are "ready, willing and able to build the necessary housing as soon as the Congress gives the Federal Housing Administration the go-ahead sign for defense housing."

Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the NAHB, said the blame for the situation lies in the Budget Bureau for delaying the money request necessary to start a mortgage insurance program.

He added that in most cities where a military housing problem exists local builders are setting up special committees to work with local and service officials, and the NAHB itself is in close touch with defense and housing officials here.

Canadian Newsman Dies

TORONTO, Sept. 23 (AP) — John Scott, a newsboy who became one of Canada's leading newspaper men, died today. He was 77.

Overdieting Fatal To One Of Nation's Richest Women

DETROIT, Sept. 23 (AP)—One of America's richest women, intent on preserving her patrician beauty, was dead today of what her doctors described as the effects of overdieting.

Mrs. Marian Peck Miles, 44-year-old blonde socialite heiress to a Canadian canvas fortune, passed away at her 31-room Georgian mansion in suburban Grosse Pointe Farms shortly before last midnight. She had spent 58 days in an oxygen tent.

Her doctors, who insisted on remaining anonymous, said she had been suffering from purpuraic anemia. They said the ailment was caused by her insistence on trimming down her weight despite their warnings.

Mrs. Miles, listed on numerous social registers, inherited an estimated $100,000,000 from her father, the late Francis G. Peck. Peck, who died on the island of Capri in 1925, was a merchant, banker, financier and philanthorpist, with extensive holdings in Canada and this country and in foreign industries.

"It was a strange thing," said her only son, Butler, 21-year-old student at Florida Southern College. "Mother had the best of doctors and they all warned her not to diet."

Mrs. Miles, who was five feet, seven inches tall, dropped to 120 pounds at her death. She remained conscious to the end but became so weak she barely could lift her arms or speak a word.

Though she never entered a beauty contest, Mrs. Miles had been acclaimed at times as one of the nation's most beautiful women.

Communists Urge Speedy Negotiations

Would Defer Talk About Conditions

TOKYO, Monday, Sept. 24 (AP) — Allied and Communist liaison officers met today to decide on a date for resumption of the Red-suspended Korean armistice talks.

The meeting was at Panmunjom, five miles east of the truce city of Kaesong and some 30 air miles northwest of Seoul.

It followed by only a few hours a Communist proposal for quick resumption of full-dress negotiations without bothering immediately with prior conditions.

The Reds and the United Nations command differed sharply in their message exchanges as to how to arrange an agreement on the neutrality of Kaesong.

Korean Red Premier Kim Il Sung and Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, commander of Chinese forces in Korea, said the full armistice delegations could discuss "appropriate machinery" to deal with future and alleged past violations of the conference neutrality zone.

Ridgway And Joy Confer

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Allied supreme commander, told the Reds Sunday he had instructed his liaison officers to give careful consideration to conditions for resuming the talks "in order to minimize the likelihood of further interruptions."

While the liaison officers met at Panmunjom, Ridgway and Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. armistice delegate, conferred at Allied headquarters in Tokyo.

The public information office reported there would be "no comment" on their meeting.

The Red reply was broadcast two and one-half hours before Gen. Ridgway, the supreme United Nations commander, sent a liaison officer to Panmunjom to get the Red message.

This formal reply was sent directly to Ridgway's headquarters from Panmunjom. Text of the message was not disclosed but presumably it was the one broadcast earlier this morning over Peiping radio.

Travel By Helicopter

The broadcast said the Red leaders would send an officer to Panmunjom but only to arrange a date and time for resuming the full scale conferences — not to discuss conditions for resumption.

They prefaced their message with a generalization of their old charges of Allied violations of the conference site.

The Allied liaison team, headed by Cols. A. J. Kinney and James S. Murray, left the U. N. command advance camp at Munsan by Helicopter for Panmunjon shortly before they were to meet the Communists at 10 a.m. (8 p.m., EST, Sunday).

They were accompanied by two interpreters.

A motor convoy carrying eight correspondents, three photographers and a press escort officer had left for the meeting place earlier.

The Communists broke off the stalemated talks Aug. 23, and since have accused the Allies of a long series of violations of the five-mile neutrality zone around Kaesong, the conference site. Two accidental violations have been acknowledged by the Allies but all the others have been denied.

Dixie Democrats Give Up On "Ike"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Southern Democrats have about given up hope they can interest Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in their party's nomination but are delaying revolt plans to see what he will do.

Some of the most influential anti-Truman leaders are giving Eisenhower until early in January to shed some light on his political intentions, if any.

If the general then says anything indicating he will be available Dixie leaders in Congress are inclined to regard it as almost a cinch he will be nominated by the Republicans in July.

In that case, plans for a Democratic convention revolt against President Truman and his civil rights program are likely to go ahead on a more or less perfunctory basis.

And if Eisenhower should be nominated by the Republicans, the chances are extremely slim that the southerners will enter a third presidential ticket after they get their expected kicking around at their own party's Chicago convention.

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Monday, Sept. 24 (AP)—American infantrymen captured the tallest peak on "Heartbreak Ridge" in Eastern Korea late Sunday in a costly battle with bayonets and hand grenades.

Only three exhausted infantrymen, remnants of a platoon, made it to the crest in the final drive at 6 p. m., (4 a. m., E. S. T.)

Reinforcements followed and helped the three respulse a Korean Red counterattack that came almost immediately.

AP Correspondent Stan Carter, reporting this success in the five-weeks-old battle of the eastern hills, said the Americans then dug in on the narrow, razor-like top as the Communists threw mortar fire from high spurs that jut out from the main mountain mass.

The American battalion that succeeded in taking the hill was reduced to about one-third of its normal size by casualties. (A battalion is normally about 1,000 men.)

13 Men Begin Final Drive

Thirteen men—all that were left of a platoon—(usually 40 men)—began the final drive to the top after four previous storming parties had failed Sunday.

Only three men made it through the Communist mortar fire and hand grenades.

They drove the last of the Reds—themselves the remnants of a battalion—from the crest and crowned the 12th day of the attack on "Heartbreak" with at least a partial victory.

North Koreans stubbornly defended their positions from "suicide bunkers" — so-called because they had only one exit.

Correspondent Carter said the Communists' only way out of the crude but effective log and dirt bunkers imbedded on the slopes of the peak was by fighting out.

Allies Seize Central Peak

Other elements of the American unit held blocking positions north of the hard-fought mountain peak. They withstood a fierce night counter-charge by reinforced Reds earlier. Allied artillery "slashed to ribbons" successive Communist attempts to battle out.

Another Allied unit drove up the slopes of a second massive mountain northwest of Yanggu and west of the Heartbreak Ridge action.

Allied infantry captured a peak southeast of Kumsong, central Red bastion 30 miles north of parallel 38, and killed 467 Chinese in a bloody two-day action. The Eighth Army announced the Red casualties Sunday.

Big Three Open German Talks

BONN, Germany, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Big Three powers will start negotiations here tomorrow on a peace contract to grant 48,000,000 West Germans broad new freedoms and a role in the Western defense system.

The Allied high commissioners will meet with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the morning to report on the Washington agreement of the Western foreign ministers.

The ministers instructed the high commissioners to conclude a new compact ending the six-year occupation and bringing the Germans into a military and political partnership with the West.

The negotiations will culminate in a "Little San Francisco" which would make the enemy of World War II the ally of tomorrow.

Veterans Of Early Korean Fighting Return To Front

CENTRAL KOREAN FRONT, Sept. 15 (Delayed by censor) (AP) — Veterans of the first days of the Korean war have returned to the United Nations battle line and are fighting under new regimental colors.

Soldiers of the old U. S. 34th Infantry Regiment went into the line on the central front yesterday as the nucleus of the U. S. 14th Infantry Regiment—a unit with a distinguished battle history dating back to the American Civil War.

The 34th was the second American regiment to arrive in Korea. It was almost annihilated at Taejon in the tragic campaign on the Naktong River perimeter in July, 1950. It was then a component of the U. S. 24th Division.

Sent back to Japan last January and reorganized, the unit was brought up to full strength.

On Aug. 27 some 400 veterans of the 34th were transferred to the 14th Regiment.

U. S. Eight Army censors would not disclose with what division the 14th Regiment is now serving.

"We are fit and ready to go," said the regimental commander. (Identity withheld by censors.)

"The men are very eager. I expect that within a month we will be by far the best regiment in Korea."

"They feel the odds are on our side now," the commander said. "All we need is a little combat to shake the regiment down."

Wallace Denies Urging Chinese Coalition In '44

Letter Made Public By President Truman

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — President Truman today made public a letter from Henry A. Wallace denying the former vice president recommended a "political coalition" between the Chinese Communists and Nationalists in 1944.

Wallace also denied that John Carter Vincent and Owen Lattimore, who accompanied him on his China mission for the late President Roosevelt, influenced him in writing his recommendations on how best to solidify China against the Japanese who were threatening the whole of East China at the time.

Wallace Disputes Testimony

Wallace wrote Mr. Truman a lengthy letter from his farm at South Salem, N. Y., to "clear up any confusion" as to what he was trying to do in China and to dispute testimony before the Senate Internal Security Committee that Vincent and Lattimore "were relied on by the party leadership to 'guide' me along the (Communist) party line."

He also enclosed a copy of his 1944 report to Mr. Roosevelt, hitherto secret, along with cables he sent to the White House that year from New Delhi, India. He told Mr. Truman he could handle the documents in any way which you deem will best minister to the welfare of the United States."

The White House made them public with a brief letter in which Mr. Truman transmitted them to Vice President Barkley.

Probers Due To Get Papers

"These papers," said Mr. Truman, "deal with certain matters which may be of interest to the Senate and its committees. I am therefore making Mr. Wallace's letter available to you for use in such ways as you deem appropriate." He made no further comment.

Barkley is expected to turn over the documents to the Internal Security Committee headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev). This group has been investigating for weeks the extent of any influence the institute of Pacific Relations, a private research organization, may have had in forming American Far Eastern policy.

"Thrill" Air Shows Ruled Out By CAA

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Air shows or exhibitions solely for the sake of thrills henceforth will not be permitted under new Civil Aeronautics Administration policy.

Air races, air meets and similar aeronautical demonstrations, the CAA said in a statement issued over the weekend, will be permitted "only when it is shown that such activities will contribute directly to the advancement of, and public confidence in aviation."

The CAA said the new policy does not rule out air shows entirely but will ban acrobatics not under direct radio control, delayed parachute jumping, dog fighting, "crazy" flying, intentional aircraft crashes, and similar unusual and hazardous types of aircraft operations.

Mother Suspected Of Hugging Infant Daughter To Death

MAYWOOD, Calif., Sept. 23 (AP)— A young mother is suspected of hugging her first-born child so hard that it died.

Mrs. Mildred Ferguson Parson, 25, was arrested yesterday after her husband, Elmer, reported the death of their daughter, Katherine, six months old.

Police Chief William Durham said Mrs. Parson told him she changed the baby's clothes, then picked up the youngster and loved her. When she put Katherine back in the crib, Durham said, the infant was dead.

Mrs. Parson is held in the county jail on suspicion of murder.

It was her first child. An autopsy will be held tomorrow.

Mossadegh Foes Use Dramatics

TEHRAN, Iran, Sept. 23 (AP) — Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's opposition in Parliament resorted to dramatics today as the nationalist chief was reported ready to order the expulsion of the last British oil technicians in the next day or two.

Employing tactics Mossadegh himself has used, one weeping deputy resigned because he said the premier's policies were building up British and American opposition to Iran. He warned the government it had better settle the oil crisis now because Conservative Winston Churchill may come to power in the British elections in October.

Another deputy, Mohammed Ali Shushtari, who took refuge in the Parliament building last night, publicly handed to the speaker a sealed envelope which he said contained his will.

"I have received a number of letters threatening me with death," he said. "I have been urging Mossadegh to be moderate, but is it worth it if I received such threats?" He added that he would continue to live in the Parliament building "until the situation is clear."

With tears streaming down his face, 38-year-old Deputy Manuchehr Teymourtash, head of one of Iran's leading families, told the Majlis (lower house) Mossadegh was suppressing opposition to his oil nationalization policies by threats and insults. Handing his resignation to Speaker Reza Hekmat, Teymourtash said he was quitting because he could not tolerate the premier's policies any longer.

Treated Animal Blood Transfusions Reported

TOKYO, Sept. 23 (AP) — The newspaper Yomiuri reported today a Japanese physician has successfully transfused treated animal blood into the veins of more than 600 human patients.

Dr. Kunio Kawaishi of Hiroshima University Medical School told a meeting of epidemics researchers in Tokyo that he has used the blood of cows, horses and pigs to give transfusions to humans — without any serious after-effects.

The doctor processes the animal blood with small amounts of formalin and caustic soda and also heats the blood.

Republicans Ask Gabrielson-RFC Dealings Inquiry

Probe Chairman Says They Will Get Wish

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Some Republican senators, demanding the scalp of GOP National Chairman Guy Gabrielson, today urged full investigation of the $18,500,000 government loans to a firm he heads.

Sen. Hoey (D-NC), chairman of a Senate investigations sub-committee, announced they will get their wish and quickly.

Gabrielson's Democratic counterpart, William M. Boyle, Jr., already is in hot water with the investigations group, which is probing into his relations with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Boyle Probe Nears End

Hoey said the committee hopes to wind up its investigation of Boyle this week. It will turn promptly, he added, to the RFC loan to Carthage-Hydrocol, Inc., a gasoline refining venture of which Gabrielson is president and general counsel.

Hoey said Democratic Chairman Boyle and Max Siskind, Boyle's former law partner, are among last major witnesses scheduled to be heard in the study of Boyle's connection with American Lithofold Corp., St. Louis printing firm. Boyle has denied he had any connection with $565,000 of RFC loans to the company.

Gabrielson Denies Impropriety

RFC, which had repeatedly refused Lithofold's application, finally granted the loans in 1949 after the firm hired Boyle as its lawyer. He then was the non-salaried Democratic national vice chairman, a post from which he advanced to the chairmanship.

Hoey's subcommittee has dug up testimony that Lithofold used government employes as its salesmen and paid them big fees while handing out gifts of $90 cameras and costly perfumes as "good will gestures" to persons with influence.

Gabrielson made public a letter to Hoey Saturday in which he acknowledged contacts with the RFC but denied they were improper.

Overdieting Fatal To One Of Nation's Richest Women

DETROIT, Sept. 23 (AP)—One of America's richest women, intent on preserving her patrician beauty, was dead today of what her doctors described as the effects of overdieting.

Mrs. Marian Peck Miles, 44-year-old blonde socialite heiress to a Canadian canvas fortune, passed away at her 31-room Georgian mansion in suburban Grosse Pointe Farms shortly before last midnight. She had spent 58 days in an oxygen tent.

Her doctors, who insisted on remaining anonymous, said she had been suffering from purpuraic anemia. They said the ailment was caused by her insistence on trimming down her weight despite their warnings.

Mrs. Miles, listed on numerous social registers, inherited an estimated $100,000,000 from her father, the late Francis G. Peck. Peck, who died on the island of Capri in 1925, was a merchant, banker, financier and philanthorpist, with extensive holdings in Canada and this country and in foreign industries.

"It was a strange thing," said her only son, Butler, 21-year-old student at Florida Southern College. "Mother had the best of doctors and they all warned her not to diet."

Mrs. Miles, who was five feet, seven inches tall, dropped to 120 pounds at her death. She remained conscious to the end but became so weak she barely could lift her arms or speak a word.

Though she never entered a beauty contest, Mrs. Miles had been acclaimed at times as one of the nation's most beautiful women.

"Business Booze" As Tax Deductible Item Threatened

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) said today he will offer an amendment to the tax increase bill to eliminate "business booze" as a tax deductible item under the heading of entertainment.

Douglas said the amendment also would limit business travel expense deductions on income tax returns to $12 a day in an effort to "put a stop to high living at public expense."

The Illinois senator is one of a bloc of 15 senators who are sponsoring 16 amendments designed to add $4,500,000,000 to the additional annual revenue in the pending $5,500,000,000 tax hike measure.

Probers Report Rent "Gouging" Of Servicemen

Local Corrective Action Proposed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP)— Rent "gouging" and sub-standard housing are so widespread around military camps that corrective action must be taken, a Senate subcommittee reported today.

But, it added in a report, the solution must come from the communities.

The report was from the Armed Services Preparedness subcommittee headed by Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D., Texas), which sent investigators to 16 Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine training camps.

The subcommittee reported conditions found at the camps were similar to those uncovered by the group in an earlier investigation of three installations—Camp Breckenridge, Ky., Fort Leonard 2Wood, Mo., and Camp Rucker, Ala.

Two Investigations Made

Johnson said the first investigation revealed such shocking conditions that a second, more thorough inquiry was made to determine the extent of "this shameful profiteering from American servicemen."

There can be no doubt that it is widespread — so widespread that corrective action must be taken," he said.

"As we state in this report, the ultimate solution must come from the communities themselves. But we must give those communities every legitimate aid within our power."

Johnson said his group will have an open hearing within a few days to give the armed services an opportunity to present recommendations.

NAHB Were Cooperative

The National Association of Home Builders, in a statement on the committee report, called the housing situation around military installations "a national disgrace." It said 25,000 members are "ready, willing and able to build the necessary housing as soon as the Congress gives the Federal Housing Administration the go-ahead sign for defense housing."

Frank W. Cortright, executive vice president of the NAHB, said the blame for the situation lies in the Budget Bureau for delaying the money request necessary to start a mortgage insurance program.

He added that in most cities where a military housing problem exists local builders are setting up special committees to work with local and service officials, and the NAHB itself is in close touch with defense and housing officials here.

Communists Urge Speedy Negotiations

Would Defer Talk About Conditions

TOKYO, Monday, Sept. 24 (AP) — Allied and Communist liaison officers met today to decide on a date for resumption of the Red-suspended Korean armistice talks.

The meeting was at Panmunjom, five miles east of the truce city of Kaesong and some 30 air miles northwest of Seoul.

It followed by only a few hours a Communist proposal for quick resumption of full-dress negotiations without bothering immediately with prior conditions.

The Reds and the United Nations command differed sharply in their message exchanges as to how to arrange an agreement on the neutrality of Kaesong.

Korean Red Premier Kim Il Sung and Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, commander of Chinese forces in Korea, said the full armistice delegations could discuss "appropriate machinery" to deal with future and alleged past violations of the conference neutrality zone.

Ridgway And Joy Confer

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Allied supreme commander, told the Reds Sunday he had instructed his liaison officers to give careful consideration to conditions for resuming the talks "in order to minimize the likelihood of further interruptions."

While the liaison officers met at Panmunjom, Ridgway and Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. armistice delegate, conferred at Allied headquarters in Tokyo.

The public information office reported there would be "no comment" on their meeting.

The Red reply was broadcast two and one-half hours before Gen. Ridgway, the supreme United Nations commander, sent a liaison officer to Panmunjom to get the Red message.

This formal reply was sent directly to Ridgway's headquarters from Panmunjom. Text of the message was not disclosed but presumably it was the one broadcast earlier this morning over Peiping radio.

Travel By Helicopter

The broadcast said the Red leaders would send an officer to Panmunjom but only to arrange a date and time for resuming the full scale conferences — not to discuss conditions for resumption.

They prefaced their message with a generalization of their old charges of Allied violations of the conference site.

The Allied liaison team, headed by Cols. A. J. Kinney and James S. Murray, left the U. N. command advance camp at Munsan by Helicopter for Panmunjon shortly before they were to meet the Communists at 10 a.m. (8 p.m., EST, Sunday).

They were accompanied by two interpreters.

A motor convoy carrying eight correspondents, three photographers and a press escort officer had left for the meeting place earlier.

The Communists broke off the stalemated talks Aug. 23, and since have accused the Allies of a long series of violations of the five-mile neutrality zone around Kaesong, the conference site. Two accidental violations have been acknowledged by the Allies but all the others have been denied.

Dixie Democrats Give Up On "Ike"

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23 (AP) — Southern Democrats have about given up hope they can interest Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower in their party's nomination but are delaying revolt plans to see what he will do.

Some of the most influential anti-Truman leaders are giving Eisenhower until early in January to shed some light on his political intentions, if any.

If the general then says anything indicating he will be available Dixie leaders in Congress are inclined to regard it as almost a cinch he will be nominated by the Republicans in July.

In that case, plans for a Democratic convention revolt against President Truman and his civil rights program are likely to go ahead on a more or less perfunctory basis.

And if Eisenhower should be nominated by the Republicans, the chances are extremely slim that the southerners will enter a third presidential ticket after they get their expected kicking around at their own party's Chicago convention.

Cumberlander, Two Baltimoreans To Be Charged In Marijuana Case

Two charges will be placed against Robert B. Brant, 404 Pennsylvania Avenue, who was caught by narcotics agents in Baltimore Friday with a quantity of marijuana he was offering for sale.

Sgt. Joseph Carroll, head of Baltimore's special narcotics squad, said he will file charges today against Brant, 58-year-old bottler for the Queen City Brewing Company; Joseph Quintella, 38-year-old Baltimore house painter, and Johnny Nassrie, 27-year-old Baltimore clerk.

Narcotics Agent Here

J. D. Lanigan, agent for the Federal Narcotics Bureau in Baltimore who was here Friday and Saturday analyzing a batch of marijuana found in Brant's home and coal shed, said he was going to obtain a Federal warrant for the local man's arrest from U. S. Commissioner James Alfred Avirett.

Sgt. Joseph Carroll said he must wait until chemists have finished testing and weighing the seized narcotic before he can prepare formal accusations, but he will charge the three with possession and control of the weed.

Brant and Quintella were arrested Friday at Baltimore in a trap set by a narcotics squad detective who had agreed to buy 12½ pounds of granulated marijuana for $2,500.

The marijuana, in a 50-pound lard can was picked up later at his home. Another man arrested in Baltimore was released after an investigation.

A tip from Baltimore officers sent Cumberland police to Brant's home Friday where they found another cache of marijuana in a coal shed behind his house.

Retail Value $60,000

Carroll estimated the 12½ pounds of granulated leaves seized in Baltimore would make 40,000 reefer cigarets, which retail for about 50 cents apiece.

Cumberland police estimated they had found 25 to 50 pounds of marijuana and other dried leaves in Brant's coal shed. The total value in the illicit retail trade was estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000.

Chief of Police R. E. Flynn explained that marijuana grows wild in this area and said that September is its harvesting period.

Found In Vacant Lots

The chief said some dope wholesalers scatter the seeds in vacant lots in planting season in June. They return in September to pick the stalks. These are separated and the leaves dried and ground or screened into reefer material.

The plant, which has a stalk from four to 16 feet in height, has long narrow leaves in bunches of seven.

The top surface of the leaves, the chief explained, has a varnish-like appearance. The stalk is fibrous, bears flowers that give off an unusual odor and the seeds are small and globular. Hemp seed oil is extracted from the seeds.

Police Praised

The work of the City Police Department in the bookmaking and dope raids conducted Friday was given high praise by Police Commissioner John J. Long.

Four men were arrested when Lieutenants Edwin R. Lilya and James E. Van Detective Thomas J. See and Officer Richard Lashley entered the Scoreboard, 20 North Mechanic Street.

They nabbed Robert Shrout, Jr., John Jenkins, Robert Pirkey and Richard Fox. Each had a $1000 property bond posted for his appearance today at 10 a. m. in Trial Magistrates Court on a bookmaking charge.

The commissioner's letter to Chief of Police R. E. Flynn follows:

"Lieutenants Lilya and Van, Detective See and Officer Lashley are certainly to be commended for the excellent manner in which they carried out the raid on the Scoreboard place. May I commend Lieut. Lilya and Detective See, also, on the success of the recent dope raid.

"I know the vast amount of preparatory work that was involved and the difficulties that Lieut. Lilya overcame to secure sufficient evidence for a warrant. The excellent cooperation of the state's attorney and city attorney is also very much appreciated. All of the time and money spent by the Crime Investigating Committee revealed, according to Chairman Kefauver, that the only way to really combat crime is on a local level.

"It is to be hoped that the evidence which has been secured against persons operating illegally on street corners and poolrooms will be enough to gain warrents and eventual conviction. It is not our job to try to determine the extent to which gambling is a nuisance in Cumberland. According to our ordinances gambling is illegal. Our job is to enforce the law. Whether more gambling exists in other parts of the County, other parts of the State or other parts of the nation does not justify complacence. I hope that every officer will list on his daily reports the names of all places in which gambling is suspected and the names of the people who frequent these places.

"Congratulations and continue the good work."

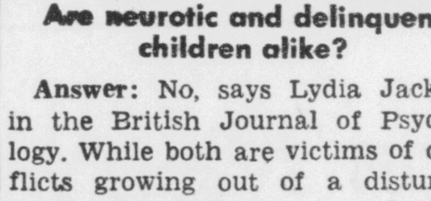
DETECTIVE
Murd rears its

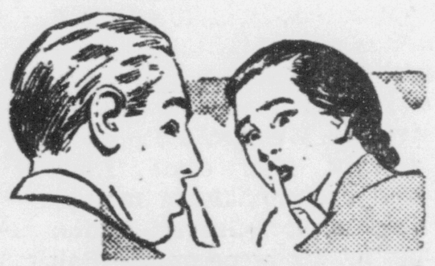
Are detective stories "reassuring"?

Answer: This is the interesting idea of literary critic Edmund Wilson ("Classics and Commercials"). He attributes the vogue of these stories to the fact that ever since World War I, the world has been ridden by an all-prevasive feeling of guilt and by a fear of impending disaster for which no one could be sure who was responsible. The detective story brings "relief" by finding the culprit and proving that "he is not, after all, a person like you or me." I might add that knowing that the villain will be caught and punished permits us unconsciously to participate in his crimes, because we know they will ultimately be atoned for.



Are neurotic and delinquent children alike?

Answer: No, says Lydia Jackson in the British Journal of Psychology. While both are victims of conflicts growing out of a disturbed relationship with their parents, they react to a "picture projection test" differently from each other and from normal children, and distinguishing between them beforehand will help us to plan the proper treatment for them. In the case of the neurotic child, the conflict is between different trends in himself (for example between self-will and the need to be dependent) whereas the delinquent objectifies his conflict by "declaring war" on his environment or on society at large.



Are epileptics fairly treated?

Answer: Far from it, says a message from the National Epilepsy League, 130 North Wells Street, Chicago. "People continue to erect unjustified social and economic barriers against persons with epilepsy" — in fact, the League cannot print its name on envelopes because of the stigma that might attach to those receiving letters from it. Yet "epilepsy is not a hopeless disease but a treatable disorder of the brain's pulsations which can be completely controlled in 50% of cases and well enough controlled in 80% so that the person can lead a normal, productive life." Making epileptics social outcasts is as wasteful as it is unjust.

That Two-Thirds Rule

When the Democratic national convention of 1936 abolished the rule requiring a two-thirds vote for Democratic nominations for President and Vice President, that two-thirds rule seemed buried beyond redemption. Yet here it is stirring in its grave again.

It is stirring in its grave because the South is up in arms agalsnt the support given by a Democratic president and the 1948 Democratic platform to civil rights proposals, including a ban on discrimination in employment by race, color or religion That platform plank was advocated by a minority of the platform committee in 1948. It was substituted for a mild plank of the committee majority by roll-call vote of 651½ to 582½.

As long as the two-thirds rule governed Democratic conventions, the South held a veto power, in effect, over the nominations. Although the Southern delegates might add up to less than 33-1/3 per cent of the total, 30 per cent or even 25 per cent was usually enough for effective trading. And although platforms were adopted by majority vote, a cohesive minority could often veto a plank through its power of vetoing a nominee.

As for the 1952 convention, what proportion of the delegates are from the South depends on what you mean by the "South." If you mean the ten states of the so-called Solid South (all were in the Confederacy), they will have 21.3 per cent of the total. If you include Tennessee (also in the Confederacy), Kentucky, Oklahoma, the group will have 27.6 per cent. Only if you then add three more "border" states, Maryland, West Virginia, Missouri, do you get a bare one-third.

In their announced attempt to restore the two-thirds rule in 1952, the Southerners will move early in the convention. After preliminary business and speeches are out of the way, every convention gets a notion to adopt the rules of the preceding one.

Once that motion is adopted, any change in the rules would require a two-thirds vote. But before such adoption, a motion to change the old rules requires only a majority vote.

In 1948 the Rules committee offered the anticipated motion to adopt the 1944 rules. Thereupon a minority report was presented for committee members from seven Southern states, recommending acceptance of the two-thirds rule. This minority proposal was snowed under by a voice vote.

The two-thirds rule began with the first convention of the Democrats, in 1832 Dominated by President Jackson, it chose him to head the ticket by acclamation. For vice president, he was imposing Van Buren, neither popular nor well known. Probably Jackson imposed the two-thirds rule as well in order to make the Van Buren nomination seem more impressive.

The rule was retained after the Civil War, according to Prof. Sait, through sheer inertia. It twice kept the presidential nomination from a candidate who had received a majority vote for it—Van Buren himself in 1844, Champ Clark in 1912. It has never been used by the Republicans.

In 1932 Gov Franklin D Roosevelt at first proposed that the two-thirds rule be abolished, then withdrew the proposal in the interest of harmony (and of his own nomination) The FDR forces at the 1936 convention had little opposition in abolishing the rule then. The South was appeased somewhat by being awarded more delegates in future conventions.

Eating Blue Ribbons

Among an austere life of inflated prices and poor cuts, housewives will read with interest the following prescription:

"Lean meat without too much fat; tender and juicy meat; meat full of flavor; and lots of it at the lowest possible cost."

Makes the mouth water, doesn't it? Of course such meat is not obtainable now. Experts and bureaucrats are full of explanations, none of which explain.

Now comes as witness an agricultural biochemist, Dr. F. E. Deatherage of Ohio State University, who attended the meeting of the American Chemical Society in New York. Dr. Deatherage is an authority on meat quality. Research in the meat industry, asserts Dr. Deatherage, is primarily directed at winning blue ribbons at livestock shows, not at pleasing the housewife at the butcher's counter.

These prize animals, bulging with muscle and wearing smug expressions on their bovine faces, do not mean a thing. The meat chemists, according to Dr. Deatherage, have cattle show prices in mind, instead of finding out what feeding and breeding best produce edible, lean, tender meat, full of juice. Their production research all too often stops at the stock show or the stockyard scales. It never approaches the dinner table.

So Dr. Deatherage wrote for them the prescription cited above. As it is now, eating a blue ribbon would be just about as palatable as what too often is sold as steak.

Brannan's Contribution

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan is not a deep thinker, and in a recent speech to agricultural editors he seemed to vaccilate between his usual line and that of the CIO.

Farmers, he told his audience, are in danger of losing federal farm benefits because their leaders aren't interested in the welfare of the city people who consume their products. Did he try to imply that city people are interested in the welfare of the farmers who consume their products?

Brannan warned that there is growing evidence of resentment toward farmers by city folk who believe they are being gouged. Farmers, he might have said, also feel city folk are gouging them.

Brannan said he has taken no poll but is convinced the American agricultural program is in peril. The attitude of the bulk of the people is less friendly to farmers than it has been in the last several decades —because farmers are suspected of serving their own selfish ends without regard to the interests of others. If he means other segments of the population are unselfish, he is indeed gullible.

If there is point to Brannan's observations, it is that the decreasing proportion of the farm population to the whole population gives urban pressure groups an advantage over rural pressure groups.

Certainly the change in atmosphere Brannan says he has detected, if it exists, cannot be attributed merely to the statements and acts of certain farm leaders. Some politicians have contributed to it, too, including a fellow he may have heard of before—name of Brannan.

How To Keep Well

Leg Pains In Children

There are many conditions on which physicians disagree. After all, the medical profession is not omniscient and does not have a crystal ball to answer every question. Most of the arguments center about disturbances that are difficult to study, such as baldness, the common cold, some nervous disorders, and the menopause.

Leg pains in children also is a good example. Most physicians have their own ideas of the cause and treatment and, because the abnormality never is fatal and disappears in time, one theory is as good as another. They all agree, however, that rheumatic fever is the origin in a small percentage, hence certain tests are recommended to rule out this possibility. Leg pains and cramps are not pleasant and may be so severe that the cries of the child rouse the entire household. Aspirin, a hot water bag, or massage often offer relief and the little one falls asleep only to awaken when distress returns. The question of why this occurs puzzles physicians as well as parents.

Excluding the possibility of rheumatic fever, it is reasonable to assume that many of these sufferers have strained a muscle or ligament while at play. If adults horsed around like children their legs would be stiff and sore for several days. Children take these antics in their stride but there is no reason why pain should not arise after jumping from a barn roof or twisting an elbow while playing king of the mountain. However, leg pain is not always so easily traced. In some instances strain results from poor posture, one leg shorter than the other, or faulty foot mechanics. The muscles in the legs become overfatigued while trying to overcome the handicap.

Dr. Duncan C. McKeever of Houston, Tex., believes that many Youngsters with leg pains are healthy and otherwise normal but suffer from congenitally short heel tendons. This means that the muscles in front of the leg must work twice as hard to lift the foot and by the end of the day, are so fatigued that spasm is inevitable. The condition is aggravated by going barefoot or wearing shoes without heels such as tennis shoes and those worn by small tots. Placing three-eighth to five-sixths of an inch heels on the shoes will offer so much relief to many that leg pains at night will disappear. If the feet are flat further benefit may be obtained with arch supports inside the shoes. He recommends heel stretching exercises for older boys and girls.

Dr. Russell V. Fuldner cited two examples in which leg cramps were of psychological origin. Both were girls with younger brothers and they complained of leg pains at night as a means of getting attention. The mother of each was in the habit of leaving her own bed at night to comfort the daughter.

Other causes include bone and joint diseases such as tumors, infections, and injuries. Rapid growth also is a possibility. Bones may be growing faster than the muscles, which leads to an unusual type of strain. Nothing can be done about this, in contrast to the good results that follow the correction of faulty posture when this factor is responsible. Leg cramps may represent a symptom of several other diseases including anemia, poor circulation, neuritis, and polio. But in these disorders, other signs coexist to help the physician make the diagnosis.

RESISTS TRAINING

Mrs. G. writes: My 3 year old sits on the training seat for a half hour or more, but refuses to do anything until I take him off. I have tried coaxing and slapping him but he just shakes his head, "no." Can you help me?

REPLY

Keep trying, minus coaxing and slapping. Most of us make the grade, provided we are normal, so there is no cause for worry. We have a leaflet on bladder and bowel training that you can obtain by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BLOOD TRANSFUSION

S. P. writes: Could a person with controled diabetes donate blood?

REPLY

There is no reason why your blood could not be used but most blood banks turn down diabetics because they do not want to assume the responsibility should anything happen.

IRON FOODS

V. T. writes: Will eating vegetables help iron anemia?

REPLY

Yes, although meats are a much richer source. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for list of foods containing iron. In severe cases of anemia, physicians often prescribe iron medication in addition because it offers quicker results.

RENAL STONES

L. Z. writes: If kidney stones are causing no symptoms, is surgery necessary?

REPLY

Yes, because the stones are damaging the kidney or interfering with the function of the organ.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

De Gasperi Influence Mainstay Of Postwar Italy; Long Rule Marked By Sense Of Justice, Religious Convictions; Premier Proves Real Friend To U. S. A.

(Ed. Note—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round today goes to Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy on his present visit to the United States.)

WASHINGTON—Five years ago I was in the Luxembourg palace in Paris when a delegation representing defeated Italy entered. The entire peace conference sat stolid and chilly. Even the American and Russian delegates, who disagreed on many things, agreed in their frostiness toward the nation which had spawned Mussolini and extended his Fascist brand of tyranny over the Mediterranean.

Japan and Germany were not permitted to send delegates to the peace conference and doubtless would not have dared to do so even had they been permitted. In contrast, a thin-faced, frail Italian wearing spectacles walked timidly up to the rostrum and made a plea.

"I raise my voice for a new republic which is striving toward the lasting and constructive peace which you also are seeking," he said. "A nation of toilers is ready and determined to work with you in the foundation of a more just and humane world."

There was no applause when the thin-faced Italian finished—no indication that he had won support for the cooperation he was seeking. Nor was there any thought that this man could long remain at the helm of the turbulent, wavering coalition of parties which then governed Italy.

Today, however, that man, Premier De Gasperi of Italy, still frail, still thin-faced, still wearing horn-rimmed spectacles, is in the United States, not as a suppliant representing a conquered nation, but as a friend and partner in the defense cooperative for Western Europe.

And having just come from Ottawa and a discussion of mutual NATO defense, De Gasperi knows better than most how drastically the diplomats have reversed themselves since that frigid day in the palace of Luxembourg in 1946.

Homespun Premier

It is quite possible that Italy would not be playing this role of full partnership had it not been for the man who arrives in Washington today. He is not a prepossessing figure. In fact, you can't imagine anyone more the opposite of Mussolini than Alcide de Gasperi—drab, demure, modest, homespun.

But the exact opposite of Mussolini—in more ways then one—is what Italy has needed in these harassed postwar years. And De Gasperi's life has been the reverse of Mussolini's almost from the day it began.

It began, incidentally, not in Italy but in Austria. De Gasperi was born—70 years ago—on the wrong side of the tracks. The son of a minor Austrian government official in the Tyrolean Alps, where Austria and Italy meet and where slices of territory have changed hands over the years.

De Gasperi studied at the University of Vienna, got into the labor movement, was elected to the Austrian parliament as an Italian Separationist, battled against both the Austrian aristocracy and Italian Communists, and finally, after World War I had shifted his part of the Alps from Austria over to Italy, was elected to the Italian parliament.

Christianity And Politics

It was in this period when the first seeds of Italian fascism were sprouting that De Gasperi helped found the Popular party, later the Christian Democratic party, based on the principle of applying christianity to social and political welfare.

The foundation of that party came too late. Also the train on which De Gasperi first rode to Rome to take his seat in parliament arrived too late. Ahead of him arrived Benito Mussolini and his Fascist black shirts. De Gasperi's train had been shunted aside to make way for Mussolini's in the night.

It was inevitable that a man with De Gasperi's liberal leanings be jailed by Mussolini. After a year and a half, however, he was rescued by the archbishop of Trento and later given a job as librarian for the Vatican.

Incidentally, it was an interview with King Victor Emmanuel which led to De Gasperi's jail sentence. He and other Popular party deputies had called on the King to demand the ousting of Mussolini—a conversation which the king promtly relayed back to Il Duce.

There were those who claimed Victor Emmanuel had never approved of Mussolini and wanted to keep him after World War II. But De Gasperi knew better. And it was that conversation he had with the King 30 years ago which contributed to the fact that Victor Emmanuel died in exile and Italy is a republic today.

De Gasperi emerged from the Vatican library after 14 years in exile to take part in guerrilla fighting against the Germans and to be elected premier of Italy in 1946.

It is a tribute to his commonsense political sagacity—and some people say to his youthful training in balancing above Alpine precipices—that De Gasperi is still in office today. A dozen cabinets have come and gone in France. A new election is about to be held in England. But De Gasperi continues at the helm in Italy.

The reasons include: first, his sense of fairness; second, his deep religious conviction that christianity must be applied to politics.

The first was demonstrated after he won the national elections in April, 1948. The victory was considered a resounding defeat for the Communists, and many leaders in De Gasperi's party demanded that the cabinet be filled entirely from the ranks of Christian Democrats. He refused.

"It wouldn't be fair," he said. "This was a victory for democracy, not for any one political party."

And he proceeded to appoint to his cabinet some of the strongest men from the Republican, Liberal, and Socialist parties.

Such is the man who has pulled Italy through the rigorous postwar period with a pro-American government despite the fact that the largest segment of the Communist party outside Russia is under his rule.

Schools And Parents

By ROGER W. BABSON

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 23—The other day I visited an old schoolhouse which I attended when a boy. It then had a big wood stove, two outhouses in the back yard (with various "inscriptions" thereon) and two grades in each room to teach us concentration, and it surely did.

Buses Vs. Gymnasiums

This old schoolhouse turned out workers and our parents then set us a good example by working hard themselves. We then walked to school, some of us two or more miles. Now this has changed. Schoolhouses now have modern toilets, with tiled walls so that the boys cannot write sassy inscriptions thereon. They have expensive central heating and ventilating systems. Buses take the children to school, with gymnasiums to exercise them after they get to school!

The whole idea now is to eliminate hardships and make the children soft. Yet, don't blame the school principals. These luxuries are demanded by the parents. Whether, however, the primitive system by which I was educated or the luxury system which exists today produces better men and women is debatable.

Bamboos and Blackboards

In my day, the teachers used the bamboo on us when reasoning failed to get results. I had my share of lickings and my parents never complained to the teachers because they spanked their "darling boy." For some reason the bamboo was not used on the girls, but they had a blackboard treatment. For instance, if a girl was caught using unbecoming language, she was compelled to write on the blackboard a hundred times the following: "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

I remember being taught to read from the McGuffy Readers and having to learn such sayings as "Habit is a cable. We weave a strand of it each day until it becomes so strong we cannot break it"; or "All that you do, do with your might"; or "Things that are half done are never done right."

Want Lower Prices

We want to reduce the cost of living, but the present price controls are the bunk. These laws are enacted to fool voters and to make more jobs for Democrats. To reduce the cost of living, we must start with the schools and teach the children to love work instead of to love play. Turn to the yearbook which your high school seniors issue and you will see that 80 per cent of it is given to various extra-curricular activities. This long name, used to fool us parents, really refers to sports, clubs and other things which teach children to spend money instead of earn it. I have never found in one of these yearbooks the account of a spelling or mental arithmetic contest.

It may be that the merchants don't want lower prices, but want the children taught to be spenders. The merchants root for bands, baseball, football and other athletics. But again I say, don't blame the school principals. They are simply giving the parents what they demand. As long as parents are primarily interested in whom the high school employs as an athletic coach, we have only ourselves to blame.

Want Religious Instruction

I am glad to say that the Bible continues to be read in Gloucester every morning. But the school committee no longer seeks teachers who regularly attend church or teach Sunday School. A woman who smoked or went to cocktail parties would then never be hired as a teacher. This change for the worse is wholly due to parents who have substituted canasta for family prayers and cocktail parties for mid-week church services.

We blame juvenile delinquency upon the schools. We criticize the schools when boys break windows and the students go on strikes; but again the parents are to blame. Parents seem to be interested in only one thing—not what their children learn—but to have their children get a diploma. Even Parent-Teacher Associations seem more interested in the children's sports than in their studies. Of course, some day parents will see their present mistakes and demand returning to fundamentals. This does not mean that we should return to outhouses, wood stoves and bamboos, but it does mean that we may return to McGuffey Readers, the three R's, good discipline and creating among students the love to work and save.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Real Draft Strategy

WASHINGTON

A much clearer outline of the strategy for drafting General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower as Republican Presidential candidate is now beginning to emerge. In theory, at least, it is a workable plan for a genuine draft. And this is crucially important, since there are as many reasons to doubt that Gen. Eisenhower will actively seek the Republican nomination, as there are reasons to believe that he will accept the nomination if offered.

The plan, which was discussed by pro-Eisenhower leaders during the Washington visit of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, turns upon the three great states of New York, Pennsylvania and California. In essential outline it is simple enough.

In the first place, it will be remarkably difficult for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio or any other Republican candidate to win nomination with these three states against him. In the second place, no Republican can conceivably be elected to the Presidency who fails to carry New York, Pennsylvania and California. Even the loss of New York alone would make election very difficult. A well-heeled organization like Sen. Taft's can buy Southern convention delegates by the sweaty bus-load, but when the first Tuesday in November rolls around, a Republican has got to get a heavy majority above the Mason and Dixon line if he wants to win.

To Form Nucleus

The Eisenhower-drafters mean to take practical advantage of both these facts. New York, Pennsylvania and California are to constitute a hard nucleus of anti-Taft convention votes. This nucleus is to provide a rallying point for other pro-Eisenhower delegations, like that which is expected to be sent from Massachusetts, where both Senators Lodge and Saltonstall are already publicly committed. And the existence of such a nucleus is further to encourage wavering states to choose favorite son delegations, like that now planned from Maryland, and to persuade the favorite sons to stay on the convention fence until the final trend is well-established.

Meanwhile — and this is really more important—such pro-Eisenhower leaders as Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania, Harry Darby of Kansas and Gov. Dewey will begin, long before the convention, to attack their party's sensitive nerve. This is the desperate longing of all organization Republicans to win the Presidency at last, after the long, thin years in the wilderness.

To touch this nerve, Republicans from other states will be told, with all the authority of the local leaders, that Sen. Taft cannot hope to carry New York, Pennsylvania and California. They will be invited "to steam-roller Taft through the convention if you want, but for God's sake blame yourselves when election time comes." This is the kind of talk that strikes cold chills in the remarkably numerous Republican politicos whose hearts are with Taft, but whose heads are full of doubts.

Movement Is Suffering

Such is the draft - Eisenhower plan. It is a false cliche that a draft is impossible. In 1916, indeed, the Republicans nominated Charles Evans Hughes without the faintest notion whether he would resign the Chief Justiceship in order to make the race. In the present case, it is expected to be enough for Gen. Eisenhower to indicate willingness to accept nomination just before the convention, either in a statement, or in a simple letter to be shown to key leaders.

It must be hastily added that the theory of the draft-Eisenhower plan is considerably better than the practice to date. In the first place, the Eisenhower movement is already suffering from a multiplicity of competing and not very friendly leaders.

In the second place, although he is authoritatively reported to be irrevocably opposed to Sen. Taft, Gov. Earl Warren of California wants to try for the nomination himself. Slender though his own chances are, Warren's personal ambitions are bound to make him a difficult ally for the Eisenhower-drafters. Finally, in the third place, there is an extremely confused situation in Pennsylvania, where the former allies, Sen. Duff and Gov. John S. Fine have split, because Fine has begun to flirt with the Grundy-Owlett faction.

Yet even in Pennsylvania, although Sen. Duff was the first Eisenhower leader there, the signs suggest that Gov. Fine is tempted to join the Eisenhower movement, while the Grundy-Owlett faction is far from being committed as yet to Sen. Taft. If worst comes to worst, moreover, Sen. Duff means to fight the issue through the primary and expects to win. In short, it is still extremely premature to talk, as some wiseacres are talking, of the Republican nomination being in the bag for Sen. Taft. In 1948, it should be recalled, the Taft forces were sure they had 400 convention votes in that same bag, but when the noses were counted, they never rose much above 200.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Republicans Without Program

The struggle for power within the Republican party may result in another Democratic triumph. It needs to be faced honestly that although General Eisenhower holds the imagination of large segments of the population, particularly among businessmen and the middle class, for the politicians he is a stalking horse.

All the prospective candidates, and there are oodles of them, realize that in a clinch between General Eisenhower and Senator Robert A. Taft, someone might be a compromise — drafted, they call it.

The prospective draftees are Thomas E. Dewey, Harold Stassen, Earl Warren, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, to mention a few. As a matter of cold political fact, anyone with the rank of governor or United States senator would enjoy being drafted for the presidential nomination and some are even hopeful for the vice presidential.

It is, of course, a natural and legal right for any native-born American, of the proper age, to be a candidate for President. And some of our Presidents in the past have been no better than some that offer themselves today. Yet, these are critical times and the country requires a wise, experienced, moral leadership. It requires a personality of the highest calibre.

General Eisenhower could only run by consent of Harry Truman. Specifically that means that if Harry Truman does not wish Eisenhower to run, he can, quietly, unostentatiously, stack the cards to have it that way. He can keep him so busy that Eisenhower's withdrawal from Europe to run for office could be a public scandal.

On the other hand, if Harry Truman did the wholly unexpected, he might favor Eisenhower, even as a Republican, should the General so declare himself, assured that Eisenhower would, for a while, be merciful toward the record and personalities of the Democratic regime, of which he is now a part and has been since World War II.

However, should Eisenhower run, he might discover the cumulative wrath of General MacArthur, who, realizing that the years have probably eliminated him as a candidate — although his friends do not hold to that notion — seeks for his country a moral resurrection. Douglas MacArthur does not regard Ike Eisenhower as a resurrector. He is likely to make it difficult for any candidate, particularly for Eisenhower, by bringing before the public issues facing the American people. This, none of the politicians desires for the next campaign.

Thomas E. Dewey is an anti-Taft candidate. He resents Taft's leadership and stature. He also dislikes being pushed to one side. Dewey is an able man, but not too graceful in his political relationships. His opposition to Taft is without meaning, except that the defeat of Taft has become a monomania with him.

He may succeed in preventing Taft from being nominated. His combination with Senator Duff of Pennsylvania and Governor Warren of California will give Dewey great force in the convention, but it will split their party wide open. The Taft followers will not accept again a Willkie-type Republican nor will they take Dewey. They will either stay away from the polls, as many Republicans have done during the past three elections, or they will vote for Harry Truman as a protest against "me-tooism."

The essential difference in followings is that a generation of Republicans has appeared who are either seeking an end to the immoralities, corruption, deceit and connivings that have characterized the Truman second term or they are liberals, as confused as left wing liberals and with equal lack of definition as to a program. This split is real.

Senator Wayne Morse, for instance, is in no manner related to the Republican party except for the legalism of running under its banner. Once elected, he associates himself with the prime minister, Dean Acheson. Morse is not without a following and acceptance among some Republicans. The same could be said for Governor Driscoll of New Jersey and Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts. These are important political personalities whose attitudes do count. As they cannot be ignored, the Republicans are split.

The time has probably passed for an effective coalition between the conservative Republicans and the conservative Democrats. Had such a coalition come into existence, it would, in the present mood of the people, have swept the country. What it amounts to is that there is a popular wish for a decent, constructive, conservative candidacy and administration. But the politicians, who control delegations and conventions, are playing solitaire — at which they rarely win.

That Two-Thirds Rule

When the Democratic national convention of 1936 abolished the rule requiring a two-thirds vote for Democratic nominations for President and Vice President, that two-thirds rule seemed buried beyond redemption. Yet here it is stirring in its grave again.

It is stirring in its grave because the South is up in arms agalsnt the support given by a Democratic president and the 1948 Democratic platform to civil rights proposals, including a ban on discrimination in employment by race, color or religion That platform plank was advocated by a minority of the platform committee in 1948. It was substituted for a mild plank of the committee majority by roll-call vote of 651½ to 582½.

As long as the two-thirds rule governed Democratic conventions, the South held a veto power, in effect, over the nominations. Although the Southern delegates might add up to less than 33-1/3 per cent of the total, 30 per cent or even 25 per cent was usually enough for effective trading. And although platforms were adopted by majority vote, a cohesive minority could often veto a plank through its power of vetoing a nominee.

As for the 1952 convention, what proportion of the delegates are from the South depends on what you mean by the "South." If you mean the ten states of the so-called Solid South (all were in the Confederacy), they will have 21.3 per cent of the total. If you include Tennessee (also in the Confederacy), Kentucky, Oklahoma, the group will have 27.6 per cent. Only if you then add three more "border" states, Maryland, West Virginia, Missouri, do you get a bare one-third.

In their announced attempt to restore the two-thirds rule in 1952, the Southerners will move early in the convention. After preliminary business and speeches are out of the way, every convention gets a notion to adopt the rules of the preceding one.

Once that motion is adopted, any change in the rules would require a two-thirds vote. But before such adoption, a motion to change the old rules requires only a majority vote.

In 1948 the Rules committee offered the anticipated motion to adopt the 1944 rules. Thereupon a minority report was presented for committee members from seven Southern states, recommending acceptance of the two-thirds rule. This minority proposal was snowed under by a voice vote.

The two-thirds rule began with the first convention of the Democrats, in 1832 Dominated by President Jackson, it chose him to head the ticket by acclamation. For vice president, he was imposing Van Buren, neither popular nor well known. Probably Jackson imposed the two-thirds rule as well in order to make the Van Buren nomination seem more impressive.

The rule was retained after the Civil War, according to Prof. Sait, through sheer inertia. It twice kept the presidential nomination from a candidate who had received a majority vote for it—Van Buren himself in 1844, Champ Clark in 1912. It has never been used by the Republicans.

In 1932 Gov Franklin D Roosevelt at first proposed that the two-thirds rule be abolished, then withdrew the proposal in the interest of harmony (and of his own nomination) The FDR forces at the 1936 convention had little opposition in abolishing the rule then. The South was appeased somewhat by being awarded more delegates in future conventions.

Eating Blue Ribbons

Among an austere life of inflated prices and poor cuts, housewives will read with interest the following prescription:

"Lean meat without too much fat; tender and juicy meat; meat full of flavor; and lots of it at the lowest possible cost."

Makes the mouth water, doesn't it? Of course such meat is not obtainable now. Experts and bureaucrats are full of explanations, none of which explain.

Now comes as witness an agricultural biochemist, Dr. F. E. Deatherage of Ohio State University, who attended the meeting of the American Chemical Society in New York. Dr. Deatherage is an authority on meat quality. Research in the meat industry, asserts Dr. Deatherage, is primarily directed at winning blue ribbons at livestock shows, not at pleasing the housewife at the butcher's counter.

These prize animals, bulging with muscle and wearing smug expressions on their bovine faces, do not mean a thing. The meat chemists, according to Dr. Deatherage, have cattle show prices in mind, instead of finding out what feeding and breeding best produce edible, lean, tender meat, full of juice. Their production research all too often stops at the stock show or the stockyard scales. It never approaches the dinner table.

So Dr. Deatherage wrote for them the prescription cited above. As it is now, eating a blue ribbon would be just about as palatable as what too often is sold as steak.

Brannan's Contribution

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan is not a deep thinker, and in a recent speech to agricultural editors he seemed to vaccilate between his usual line and that of the CIO.

Farmers, he told his audience, are in danger of losing federal farm benefits because their leaders aren't interested in the welfare of the city people who consume their products. Did he try to imply that city people are interested in the welfare of the farmers who consume their products?

Brannan warned that there is growing evidence of resentment toward farmers by city folk who believe they are being gouged. Farmers, he might have said, also feel city folk are gouging them.

Brannan said he has taken no poll but is convinced the American agricultural program is in peril. The attitude of the bulk of the people is less friendly to farmers than it has been in the last several decades—because farmers are suspected of serving their own selfish ends without regard to the interests of others. If he means other segments of the population are unselfish, he is indeed gullible.

If there is point to Brannan's observations, it is that the decreasing proportion of the farm population to the whole population gives urban pressure groups an advantage over rural pressure groups.

Certainly the change in atmosphere Brannan says he has detected, if it exists, cannot be attributed merely to the statements and acts of certain farm leaders. Some politicians have contributed to it, too, including a fellow he may have heard of before—name of Brannan.

How To Keep Well

Leg Pains In Children

There are many conditions on which physicians disagree. After all, the medical profession is not omniscient and does not have a crystal ball to answer every question. Most of the arguments center about disturbances that are difficult to study, such as baldness, the common cold, some nervous disorders, and the menopause.

Leg pains in children also is a good example. Most physicians have their own ideas of the cause and treatment and, because the abnormality never is fatal and disappears in time, one theory is as good as another. They all agree, however, that rheumatic fever is the origin in a small percentage, hence certain tests are recommended to rule out this possibility. Leg pains and cramps are not pleasant and may be so severe that the cries of the child rouse the entire household. Aspirin, a hot water bag, or massage often offer relief and the little one falls asleep only to awaken when distress returns. The question of why this occurs puzzles physicians as well as parents.

Excluding the possibility of rheumatic fever, it is reasonable to assume that many of these sufferers have strained a muscle or ligament while at play. If adults horsed around like children their legs would be stiff and sore for several days. Children take these antics in their stride but there is no reason why pain should not arise after jumping from a barn roof or twisting an elbow while playing king of the mountain. However, leg pain is not always so easily traced. In some instances strain results from poor posture, one leg shorter than the other, or faulty foot mechanics. The muscles in the legs become overfatigued while trying to overcome the handicap.

Dr. Duncan C. McKeever of Houston, Tex., believes that many Youngsters with leg pains are healthy and otherwise normal but suffer from congenitally short heel tendons. This means that the muscles in front of the leg must work twice as hard to lift the foot and by the end of the day, are so fatigued that spasm is inevitable. The condition is aggravated by going barefoot or wearing shoes without heels such as tennis shoes and those worn by small tots. Placing three-eighth to five-sixths of an inch heels on the shoes will offer so much relief to many that leg pains at night will disappear. If the feet are flat further benefit may be obtained with arch supports inside the shoes. He recommends heel stretching exercises for older boys and girls.

Dr. Russell V. Fuldner cited two examples in which leg cramps were of psychological origin. Both were girls with younger brothers and they complained of leg pains at night as a means of getting attention. The mother of each was in the habit of leaving her own bed at night to comfort the daughter.

Other causes include bone and joint diseases such as tumors, infections, and injuries. Rapid growth also is a possibility. Bones may be growing faster than the muscles, which leads to an unusual type of strain. Nothing can be done about this, in contrast to the good results that follow the correction of faulty posture when this factor is responsible. Leg cramps may represent a symptom of several other diseases including anemia, poor circulation, neuritis, and polio. But in these disorders, other signs coexist to help the physician make the diagnosis.

V. T. writes: Will eating vegetables help iron anemia?

REPLY

Yes, although meats are a much richer source. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for list of foods containing iron. In severe cases of anemia, physicians often prescribe iron medication in addition because it offers quicker results.

RENAL STONES

L. Z. writes: If kidney stones are causing no symptoms, is surgery necessary?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

De Gasperi Influence Mainstay Of Postwar Italy; Long Rule Marked By Sense Of Justice, Religious Convictions; Premier Proves Real Friend To U. S. A.

(Ed. Note—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round today goes to Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy on his present visit to the United States.)

WASHINGTON—Five years ago I was in the Luxembourg palace in Paris when a delegation representing defeated Italy entered. The entire peace conference sat stolid and chilly. Even the American and Russian delegates, who disagreed on many things, agreed in their frostiness toward the nation which had spawned Mussolini and extended his Fascist brand of tyranny over the Mediterranean.

Japan and Germany were not permitted to send delegates to the peace conference and doubtless would not have dared to do so even had they been permitted. In contrast, a thin-faced, frail Italian wearing spectacles walked timidly up to the rostrum and made a plea.

"I raise my voice for a new republic which is striving toward the lasting and constructive peace which you also are seeking," he said. "A nation of toilers is ready and determined to work with you in the foundation of a more just and humane world."

There was no applause when the thin-faced Italian finished—no indication that he had won support for the cooperation he was seeking. Nor was there any thought that this man could long remain at the helm of the turbulent, wavering coalition of parties which then governed Italy.

Today, however, that man, Premier De Gasperi of Italy, still frail, still thin-faced, still wearing horn-rimmed spectacles, is in the United States, not as a suppliant representing a conquered nation, but as a friend and partner in the defense cooperative for Western Europe.

And having just come from Ottawa and a discussion of mutual NATO defense, De Gasperi knows better than most how drastically the diplomats have reversed themselves since that frigid day in the palace of Luxembourg in 1946.

Homespun Premier

It is quite possible that Italy would not be playing this role of full partnership had it not been for the man who arrives in Washington today. He is not a prepossessing figure. In fact, you can't imagine anyone more the opposite of Mussolini than Alcide de Gasperi—drab, demure, modest, homespun.

But the exact opposite of Mussolini—in more ways then one—is what Italy has needed in these harassed postwar years. And De Gasperi's life has been the reverse of Mussolini's almost from the day it began.

It began, incidentally, not in Italy but in Austria. De Gasperi was born—70 years ago—on the wrong side of the tracks. The son of a minor Austrian government official in the Tyrolean Alps, where Austria and Italy meet and where slices of territory have changed hands over the years.

De Gasperi studied at the University of Vienna, got into the labor movement, was elected to the Austrian parliament as an Italian Separationist, battled against both the Austrian aristocracy and Italian Communists, and finally, after World War I had shifted his part of the Alps from Austria over to Italy, was elected to the Italian parliament.

Christianity And Politics

It was in this period when the first seeds of Italian fascism were sprouting that De Gasperi helped found the Popular party, later the Christian Democratic party, based on the principle of applying christianity to social and political welfare.

The foundation of that party came too late. Also the train on which De Gasperi first rode to Rome to take his seat in parliament arrived too late. Ahead of him arrived Benito Mussolini and his Fascist black shirts. De Gasperi's train had been shunted aside to make way for Mussolini's in the night.

It was inevitable that a man with De Gasperi's liberal leanings be jailed by Mussolini. After a year and a half, however, he was rescued by the archbishop of Trento and later given a job as librarian for the Vatican.

Incidentally, it was an interview with King Victor Emmanuel which led to De Gasperi's jail sentence. He and other Popular party deputies had called on the King to demand the ousting of Mussolini—a conversation which the king promtly relayed back to Il Duce.

There were those who claimed Victor Emmanuel had never approved of Mussolini and wanted to keep him after World War II. But De Gasperi knew better. And it was that conversation he had with the King 30 years ago which contributed to the fact that Victor Emmanuel died in exile and Italy is a republic today.

De Gasperi emerged from the Vatican library after 14 years in exile to take part in guerrilla fighting against the Germans and to be elected premier of Italy in 1946.

It is a tribute to his common-sense political sagacity—and some people say to his youthful training in balancing above Alpine precipices—that De Gasperi is still in office today. A dozen cabinets have come and gone in France. A new election is about to be held in England. But De Gasperi continues at the helm in Italy.

The reasons include: first, his sense of fairness; second, his deep religious conviction that christianity must be applied to politics.

The first was demonstrated after he won the national elections in April, 1948. The victory was considered a resounding defeat for the Communists, and many leaders in De Gasperi's party demanded that the cabinet be filled entirely from the ranks of Christian Democrats. He refused.

"It wouldn't be fair," he said. "This was a victory for democracy, not for any one political party."

And he proceeded to appoint to his cabinet some of the strongest men from the Republican, Liberal, and Socialist parties.

Such is the man who has pulled Italy through the rigorous postwar period with a pro-American government despite the fact that the largest segment of the Communist party outside Russia is under his rule.

Schools And Parents

By ROGER W. BABSON

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Sept. 23—The other day I visited an old schoolhouse which I attended when a boy. It then had a big wood stove, two outhouses in the back yard (with various "inscriptions" thereon) and two grades in each room to teach us concentration, and it surely did.

Buses Vs. Gymnasiums

This old schoolhouse turned out workers and our parents then set us a good example by working hard themselves. We then walked to school, some of us two or more miles. Now this has changed. Schoolhouses now have modern toilets, with tiled walls so that the boys cannot write sassy inscriptions thereon. They have expensive central heating and ventilating systems. Buses take the children to school, with gymnasiums to exercise them after they get to school!

The whole idea now is to eliminate hardships and make the children soft. Yet, don't blame the school principals. These luxuries are demanded by the parents. Whether, however, the primitive system by which I was educated or the luxury system which exists today produces better men and women is debatable.

Bamboos and Blackboards

In my day, the teachers used the bamboo on us when reasoning failed to get results. I had my share of lickings and my parents never complained to the teachers because they spanked their "darling boy." For some reason the bamboo was not used on the girls, but they had a blackboard treatment. For instance, if a girl was caught using unbecoming language, she was compelled to write on the blackboard a hundred times the following: "A soft answer turneth away wrath."

I remember being taught to read from the McGuffy Readers and having to learn such sayings as "Habit is a cable. We weave a strand of it each day until it becomes so strong we cannot break it"; or "All that you do, do with your might"; or "Things that are half done are never done right."

Want Lower Prices

We want to reduce the cost of living, but the present price controls are the bunk. These laws are enacted to fool voters and to make more jobs for Democrats. To reduce the cost of living, we must start with the schools and teach the children to love work instead of to love play. Turn to the yearbook which your high school seniors issue and you will see that 80 per cent of it is given to various extra-curricular activities. This long name, used to fool us parents, really refers to sports, clubs and other things which teach children to spend money instead of earn it. I have never found in one of these yearbooks the account of a spelling or mental arithmetic contest.

It may be that the merchants don't want lower prices, but want the children taught to be spenders. The merchants root for bands, baseball, football and other athletics. But again I say, don't blame the school principals. They are simply giving the parents what they demand. As long as parents are primarily interested in whom the high school employs as an athletic coach, we have only ourselves to blame.

Want Religious Instruction

I am glad to say that the Bible continues to be read in Gloucester every morning. But the school committee no longer seeks teachers who regularly attend church or teach Sunday School. A woman who smoked or went to cocktail parties would then never be hired as a teacher. This change for the worse is wholly due to parents who have substituted canasta for family prayers and cocktail parties for mid-week church services.

We blame juvenile delinquency upon the schools. We criticize the schools when boys break windows and the students go on strikes; but again the parents are to blame. Parents seem to be interested in only one thing—not what their children learn—but to have their children get a diploma. Even Parent-Teacher Associations seem more interested in the children's sports than in their studies. Of course, some day parents will see their present mistakes and demand returning to fundamentals. This does not mean that we should return to outhouses, wood stoves and bamboos, but it does mean that we may return to McGuffey Readers, the three R's, good discipline and creating among students the love to work and save.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON

A much clearer outline of the strategy for drafting General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower as Republican Presidential candidate is now beginning to emerge. In theory, at least, it is a workable plan for a genuine draft. And this is crucially important, since there are as many reasons to doubt that Gen. Eisenhower will actively seek the Republican nomination, as there are reasons to believe that he will accept the nomination if offered.

The plan, which was discussed by pro-Eisenhower leaders during the Washington visit of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, turns upon the three great states of New York, Pennsylvania and California. In essential outline it is simple enough.

In the first place, it will be remarkably difficult for Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio or any other Republican candidate to win nomination with these three states against him. In the second place, no Republican can conceivably be elected to the Presidency who fails to carry New York, Pennsylvania and California. Even the loss of New York alone would make election very difficult. A well-heeled organization like Sen. Taft's can buy Southern convention delegates by the sweaty bus-load, but when the first Tuesday in November rolls around, a Republican has got to get a heavy majority above the Mason and Dixon line if he wants to win.

To Form Nucleus

The Eisenhower-drafters mean to take practical advantage of both these facts. New York, Pennsylvania and California are to constitute a hard nucleus of anti-Taft convention votes. This nucleus is to provide a rallying point for other pro-Eisenhower delegations, like that which is expected to be sent from Massachusetts, where both Senators Lodge and Saltonstall are already publicly committed. And the existence of such a nucleus is further to encourage wavering states to choose favorite son delegations, like that now planned from Maryland, and to persuade the favorite sons to stay on the convention fence until the final trend is well-established.

Meanwhile — and this is really more important—such pro-Eisenhower leaders as Sen. James Duff of Pennsylvania, Harry Darby of Kansas and Gov. Dewey will begin, long before the convention, to attack their party's sensitive nerve. This is the desperate longing of all organization Republicans to win the Presidency at last, after the long, thin years in the wilderness.

To touch this nerve, Republicans from other states will be told, with all the authority of the local leaders, that Sen. Taft cannot hope to carry New York, Pennsylvania and California. They will be invited "to steam-roller Taft through the convention if you want, but for God's sake blame yourselves when election time comes." This is the kind of talk that strikes cold chills in the remarkably numerous Republican politicos whose hearts are with Taft, but whose heads are full of doubts.

Movement Is Suffering

Such is the draft - Eisenhower plan. It is a false cliche that a draft is impossible. In 1916, indeed, the Republicans nominated Charles Evans Hughes without the faintest notion whether he would resign the Chief Justiceship in order to make the race. In the present case, it is expected to be enough for Gen. Eisenhower to indicate willingness to accept nomination just before the convention, either in a statement, or in a simple letter to be shown to key leaders.

It must be hastily added that the theory of the draft-Eisenhower plan is considerably better than the practice to date. In the first place, the Eisenhower movement is already suffering from a multiplicity of competing and not very friendly leaders.

In the second place, although he is authoritatively reported to be irrevocably opposed to Sen. Taft, Gov. Earl Warren of California wants to try for the nomination himself. Slender though his own chances are, Warren's personal ambitions are bound to make him a difficult ally for the Eisenhower-drafters. Finally, in the third place, there is an extremely confused situation in Pennsylvania, where the former allies, Sen. Duff and Gov. John S. Fine have split, because Fine has begun to flirt with the Grundy-Owlett faction.

Yet even in Pennsylvania, although Sen. Duff was the first Eisenhower leader there, the signs suggest that Gov. Fine is tempted to join the Eisenhower movement, while the Grundy-Owlett faction is far from being committed as yet to Sen. Taft. If worst comes to worst, moreover, Sen. Duff means to fight the issue through the primary and expects to win. In short, it is still extremely premature to talk, as some wiseacres are talking, of the Republican nomination being in the bag for Sen. Taft. In 1948, it should be recalled, the Taft forces were sure they had 400 convention votes in that same bag, but when the noses were counted, they never rose much above 200.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Republicans Without Program

The struggle for power within the Republican party may result in another Democratic triumph. It needs to be faced honestly that although General Eisenhower holds the imagination of large segments of the population, particularly among businessmen and the middle class, for the politicians he is a stalking horse.

All the prospective candidates, and there are oodles of them, realize that in a clinch between General Eisenhower and Senator Robert A. Taft, someone might be a compromise — drafted, they call it.

The prospective draftees are Thomas E. Dewey, Harold Stassen, Earl Warren, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey, to mention a few. As a matter of cold political fact, anyone with the rank of governor or United States senator would enjoy being drafted for the presidential nomination and some are even hopeful for the vice presidential.

It is, of course, a natural and legal right for any native-born American, of the proper age, to be a candidate for President. And some of our Presidents in the past have been no better than some that offer themselves today. Yet, these are critical times and the country requires a wise, experienced, moral leadership. It requires a personality of the highest calibre.

General Eisenhower could only run by consent of Harry Truman. Specifically that means that if Harry Truman does not wish Eisenhower to run, he can, quietly, unostentatiously, stack the cards to have it that way. He can keep him so busy that Eisenhower's withdrawal from Europe to run for office could be a public scandal.

On the other hand, if Harry Truman did the wholly unexpected, he might favor Eisenhower, even as a Republican, should the General so declare himself, assured that Eisenhower would, for a while, be merciful toward the record and personalities of the Democratic regime, of which he is now a part and has been since World War II.

However, should Eisenhower run, he might discover the cumulative wrath of General MacArthur, who, realizing that the years have probably eliminated him as a candidate — although his friends do not hold to that notion — seeks for his country a moral resurrection. Douglas MacArthur does not regard Ike Eisenhower as a resurrector. He is likely to make it difficult for any candidate, particularly for Eisenhower, by bringing before the public issues facing the American people. This, none of the politicians desires for the next campaign.

Thomas E. Dewey is an anti-Taft candidate. He resents Taft's leadership and stature. He also dislikes being pushed to one side. Dewey is an able man, but not too graceful in his political relationships. His opposition to Taft is without meaning, except that the defeat of Taft has become a monomania with him.

He may succeed in preventing Taft from being nominated. His combination with Senator Duff of Pennsylvania and Governor Warren of California will give Dewey great force in the convention, but it will split their party wide open. The Taft followers will not accept again a Willkie-type Republican nor will they take Dewey. They will either stay away from the polls, as many Republicans have done during the past three elections, or they will vote for Harry Truman as a protest against "me-tooism."

The essential difference in followings is that a generation of Republicans has appeared who are either seeking an end to the immoralities, corruption, deceit and connivings that have characterized the Truman second term or they are liberals, as confused as left wing liberals and with equal lack of definition as to a program. This split is real.

Senator Wayne Morse, for instance, is in no manner related to the Republican party except for the legalism of running under its banner. Once elected, he associates himself with the prime minister, Dean Acheson. Morse is not without a following and acceptance among some Republicans. The same could be said for Governor Driscoll of New Jersey and Senator Saltonstall of Massachusetts. These are important political personalities whose attitudes do count. As they cannot be ignored, the Republicans are split.

The time has probably passed for an effective coalition between the conservative Republicans and the conservative Democrats. Had such a coalition come into existence, it would, in the present mood of the people, have swept the country. What it amounts to is that there is a popular wish for a decent, constructive, conservative candidacy and administration. But the politicians, who control delegations and conventions, are playing solitaire — at which they rarely win.

Local Soldier Killed By Sentry At Fort Meade

An Army sentry shot and killed a young local soldier late Friday night near an ordnance warehouse at Fort George G. Meade.

The Army identified the victim as Pfc. Allen F. Iames, 18, of 443 Columbia Street.

Iames was stationed at Fort Meade temporarily while waiting for trial before a court martial on charges of assaulting an officer on August 18 at Fort Miles, Del. He was not being held in the prison stockade, however.

An Army spokesman said there was no immediate explanation how Iames happened to be in the ordnance warehouse area. It is eight or ten city blocks from the unit where he was quartered.

The sentry reported he was on his post at the ordnance warehouse when he saw a man running across the adjoining parking lot about 9 p. m. He found a man crouching between two of the sedans stored on the lot and challenged him. The man turned as if to run and the guard fired with his .45 pistol.

Two witnesses said they saw a man running from the area after the shot.

Pfc. Iames' mother and stepfather were enroute from Camp Lejeune, N. C., after visiting another son in the U. S. Marines, and Maryland State Police sent out a radio message for police on their route to notify them of the soldier's death.

A native of Ridgeley, Pfc. Iames was a son of the late McKinley Iames and Wilma Sanders Iames Campbell.

Besides his mother, Pfc. Iames has three brothers, James M. Iames, city; Sgt. Richard T. Iames, Camp Lejeune, N. C., and Harold Eugene Iames, city. The deceased was a member of the Church of Christ and enlisted in the Army in August, 1950.

The body will be brought to the George Funeral Home, Greene Street.

Barter Theater Founder To Visit Here Wednesday

Robert Porterfield, who founded the Barter Theater of Abingdon, Va., in 1933, will be in Cumberland next Wednesday to give several talks on his unique organization, according to Floyd S. Cozad, chairman of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce committee which is sponsoring the theater here.

Cozad said Porterfield, a native Virginian and a veteran of Broadway and Hollywood productions, will speak before the Jaycees and probably local high school students. If he arrives before noon he will probably talk at a service club luncheon.

Barter is termed the most fabulous theater in the United States and is the first state aided theater in America. It receives a grant from the Virginia Conservation Commission. It is also the first professional theater in the entire South and the largest professional company outside New York City.

Actually, Barter has three complete companies. They troupe at all times except during the summer when they base at Abingdon, where the players, with their designers, directors, technicians and others produce a repertory of 14 plays, giving plays nightly except Sunday.

Seven of these plays are trouped throughout the winter season. It is the most complete single theatrical organization in America.

Porterfield, besides being the originator of Barter, has had successful careers in Hollywood and on Broadway. He has been in 28 Broadway productions and was featured in a number of movies, including "The Yearling" and "Sergeant York."

Besides the theater, Porterfield has his own farm at Glade Spring, Va., and is a lecturer with the Columbia Lecture Bureau and a director of the National Theater Assembly and the American Theater and Academy.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

"The Life Of A Newspaperman Is So Interesting"

"Tell us the inside story of the Tone-Neal fight," said the lady who had just returned from Paris and was wearing her new Christian Dior gown for the first time.

John Wheeler

We were having dinner with some friends in Ridgefield, Conn., the Saturday after the movie actors had put on a battle without any paid admission or television, a mistake, over the affections of the photogenic Hollywood blonde. Being in the newspaper business, they seemed to think I had spent the afternoon on the long-distance telephone interviewing Barbara Payton and Tom Neal. As a matter of fact, I had never heard of either one until the fight.

My audience appeared to be disappointed at first until after the second drink, they became yacketyyack about their summer abroad and how they had rubbed shoulders with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at Biarritz and how smart and wonderful she looked but for her hands.

That's why she wears short white gloves all the time, except when she is playing baccarat," said one.

"She must be almost 60," added another. "She's older than the Duke, you know."

Actually, I had spent the afternoon trying to catch a heifer belonging to a neighbor who had come to visit our bull in the pasture. In the course of the chase, a calf stuck her horn in my stomach without any serious consequences so far. Many persons, who watch the movies and television, get the idea anyone in the newspaper business is constantly in danger chasing hoodlums or solving murders or spends his evenings interviewing stars of the stage and screen and other glamor dames. If that's true, then I've been in hard luck.

Once I thought I would get a feature story about an old bread line in the Bowery in New York which formed at midnight, so I made myself up to look like a bum, or maybe two bums. Full of confidence, I took my place in the block-long queue and engaged a companion in conversation as we stood waiting and then shuffled along a few steps. He didn't seem very friendly about the whole business and finally exploded with this remark:

"What are you trying to do in here, you jerk, take bread out of our mouths Anyone can see you're not on the level."

I withdrew before stopping a punch with my nose and didn't get the story.

The New York Daily News used to have a very pretty girl reporter who could hold her own in any beauty league. I have forgotten her name which probably makes no difference, as she is very likely married and a middle-aged mother by now. When the Prince of Wales came to visit the United States about 1924, before he had turned his back on the throne for Wally, he had all the social climbers stretching their necks.

Some hostess gave a big dance at her Long Island estate and the News fixed up the little girl reporter in the best looking evening gown money could buy and then put her through the hopper at Elizabeth Arden's or Helena Rubinstein's or one of the big polishing factories. The idea was that she should dance with the Prince, observe the goings on, and then duck out, like Cinderella, about midnight, hustle to the office, and write her story.

She drove up to the door in a big limousine with a chauffeur, also furnished by the newspaper, and crashed the gate without any trouble. It wasn't long before His Royal Highness spotted her and one of his assistants, called an equerry, arranged a waltz. She must have been a swell dancer, because the Prince fell for her like a ton of bricks, taking her for a walk in the garden about 2 a. m.

In the meantime the editors were biting their fingernails and holding speech in each edition, waiting for their silver heels to show up with her world-rocking report. Finally about four she put in an appearance and the boys in their shirt sleeves urged her to sit down at a typewriter, assuring her it was not yet too late. She sat down all right but in front of the bosses and made this startling announcement:

"I am not going to write any story. We got to be good friends, and it wouldn't be honorable to betray his confidence."

She wouldn't budge, so she got fired, keeping the evening gown. Of course, she didn't marry her Prince Charming, and she might as well have done the essay for, as far as I know, she never saw him again.

No, the newspaper business is not very exciting unless you are a war correspondent, or want to climb over transoms or peak through keyholes, and then you had better get yourself a lot of accident insurance.

Elmer H. Bobst, president of Warner-Hudnut, Inc., and chairman of the campaign committee of the American Cancer Society, tells a story of grim retribution.

Forty years ago, before the Harrison narcotics law, there lived in Bobst's region of Philadelphia a doctor whose fine home and expensive manner of living were in sharp contrast to his modest practice.

The contradiction stayed with Bobst when the tycoon-to-be became a salesman for a drug company. One day, armed with his suitcase of pharmaceutical, chemicals, including narcotics, young Bobst stepped into a dimly lighted drugstore in Philadelphia's Tenderloin district and was surprised to see four men playing cards behind the prescription counter.

One asked him what his price was for morphine sulphate and diacetylmorphine hydrochloride, and when Bobst quoted the price the man casually ordered 100 ounces of each. Surprised, Bobst asked for credit references and was told to come back the next day for the check.

He returned the following day and was shocked to find a steady stream of human derelicts moving in and out of the store. But the man had a check for him.

It was signed by the mysterious doctor. Bobst then knew the source of the man's income, and never returned to that drugstore, so filled was he with revulsion.

Years later Bobst called on a doctor friend in North Philadelphia, and recoiled from the sight of a patient who sat waiting for treatment. The patient's face was no longer a face, but a ghastly mockery of one. It was the once resplendent doctor.

He was suffering from a cancer and in constant pain. His system had built up a resistance to his own morphine. He had misused it to make thousands suffer, and when he at last took it to conquer his cancer pain it would not afford him relief.

One of the reasons why Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi is in Washington, for talks with the Messrs. Truman and Acheson, is the question of emigration of Italy's surplus population. Italy's population has jumped from about 43,000,000 in 1936 to more than 47,000,000.

"The Italian government has made great efforts and has won over endless difficulties to reopen the channels of emigration," the P. M. says. "In 1949 some 173,185 Italians emigrated, but the present volume of emigration is not sufficient."

De Gasperi believes that if this and other countries absorb Italian emigrants there will be a marked decrease in the effectiveness of Communist propaganda in that country.

Local Soldier Killed By Sentry At Fort Meade

An Army sentry shot and killed a young local soldier late Friday night near an ordnance warehouse at Fort George G. Meade.

The Army identified the victim as Pfc. Allen F. James, 18, of 443 Columbia Street.

James was stationed at Fort Meade temporarily while waiting for trial before a court martial on charges of assaulting an officer on August 18 at Fort Miles, Del.

He was not being held in the prison stockade, however.

An Army spokesman said there was no immediate explanation how James happened to be in the ordnance warehouse area. It is eight or ten city blocks from the unit where he was quartered.

The sentry reported he was on his post at the ordnance warehouse when he saw a man running across the adjoining parking lot about 9 p. m. He found a man crouching between two of the sedans stored on the lot and challenged him. The man turned as if to run and the guard fired with his .45 pistol.

Two witnesses said they saw a man running from the area after the shot.

Pfc. James' mother and stepfather were enroute from Camp Lejeune, N. C., after visiting another son in the U. S. Marines, and Maryland State Police sent out a radio message for police on their route to notify them of the soldier's death.

A native of Ridgeley, Pfc. James was a son of the late McKinley James and Wilma Sanders James Campbell.

Besides his mother, Pfc. James has three brothers, James M. James, city; Sgt. Richard T. James, Camp Lejeune, N. C., and Harold Eugene James, city. The deceased was a member of the Church of Christ and enlisted in the Army in August, 1950.

The body will be brought to the George Funeral Home, Greene Street.

Barter Theater Founder To Visit Here Wednesday

Robert Porterfield, who founded the Barter Theater of Abingdon, Va., in 1933, will be in Cumberland next Wednesday to give several talks on his unique organization, according to Floyd S. Cozad, chairman of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce committee which is sponsoring the theater here.

Cozad said Porterfield, a native Virginian and a veteran of Broadway and Hollywood productions, will speak before the Jaycees and probably local high school students. If he arrives before noon he will probably talk at a service club luncheon.

Barter is termed the most fabulous theater in the United States and is the first state aided theater in America. It receives a grant from the Virginia Conservation Commission. It is also the first professional theater in the entire South and the largest professional company outside New York City.

Actually, Barter has three complete companies. They troupe at all times except during the summer when they base at Abingdon, where the players, with their designers, directors, technicians and others produce a repertory of 14 plays, giving plays nightly except Sunday.

Seven of these plays are trouped throughout the winter season. It is the most complete single theatrical organization in America.

Porterfield, besides being the originator of Barter, has had successful careers in Hollywood and on Broadway. He has been in 28 Broadway productions and was featured in a number of movies, including "The Yearling" and "Sergeant York."

Besides the theater, Porterfield has his own farm at Glade Spring, Va., and is a lecturer with the Columbia Lecture Bureau and a director of the National Theater Assembly and the American Theater and Academy.

The Expansive Bert Parks

I can spot a trend as well as the next fellow, I keep telling myself, and the trend I have spotted—stand back, men! This is dynamite—is Bert Parks. Bert Parks on "Stop the Music." Bert Parks on "Break the Bank." Bert Parks on a thrice-weekly afternoon show (NBC 3:30 p. m. EDT, Mon., Wed., Fri.) which is aptly named the Bert Parks show.

John Crosby

Some years ago the trend was Arthur Godfrey. Arthur Godfrey time. Arthur Godfrey and His Friends. Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts. Fears were expressed during this phase of Mr. Godfrey's expanding economy, that he would eventually engulf all of the Columbia Broadcasting System. I was looking forward with some alarm to reviewing Young Dr. Godfrey, Our Gal Godfrey, Godfrey Goes A-Shopping, and the rest of them. But the Godfrey expansion was finally halted, conceivably by the anti-trust laws. Now we have the Bert Parks menace.

This has got to be stopped. I can't be looking at Bert Parks all the time. My blood pressure is high enough as it is. Where Mr. Godfrey confines himself to one network, Mr. Parks is generously distributed over two, NBC possessing about twice as much Parks as ABC. This seems only fair. Mr. Parks, who also emcees the Macy parade from time to time just to keep from perishing of inactivity, is a personable, high-voltage operator with a grin you can read by.

He originally sprang into prominence by giving away Cadillacs, mink coats and 12 year's supplies of shaving cream on "Stop the Music." You might think this is easy, but it isn't. Parks can give away $20,000 with a flourish no one else has ever quite matched. It's too bad, I keep thinking, that Parks wasn't born a Rockefeller. Then all those millions could have been distributed in full sight of all of us on television. Parks would have passed the moola around in bundles of $1,000 bills while buzzers sounded, lights flashed and Betty Ann Grove sang "Millionaires Are Hard to Find" in the background.

But let's stop woolgathering. Somewhere during his charitable activities, it was discovered that Parks had a distinct flair for comedy, a passable voice and, after taxes, a $40,000 personality which is quite a lot of show in the surtax brackets. This led to the afternoon show, an enterprise in which Parks doesn't give away so much as a can of sardines. His hand wanders absently to his pockets now and then but then he remembers and gets back to business.

The afternoon show is a very pleasant half hour and certainly an ambitious one for afternoon TV. It is awash with gimmicks, sight gags and elaborate song cues and is so strikingly informal that, as a gesture of respect, you ought to remove your shoes while watching it. In the middle of a song, "We Joined the Navy to See the World," Parks and his sidekick Bobby Sherwood, a reformed bandleader, will arrange to have a near-sighted admiral walk overboard—"We lose more admirals"—and then go right on with the song.

It's a prank, really, rather than comedy, but then TV comedy is getting awfully prankish. On the Parks show, they play pranks on one another, Mr. Parks shooting arrows at Mr. Sherwood, Mr. Sherwood shooting them back. One of the chief victims is Betty Ann Grove, one of the fairly permanent members of Mr. Parks' entourage, who has been asked to do everything except ride elephants to put a song across. She's a remarkably good-natured and terribly agile girl and so far has escaped serious injury, though I wouldn's gamble a farthing on her if I were an insurance company. Like Mr. Parks, she is talented in all directions—songs, dances, gags—and, I expect, she could run the roulette tables in an emergency, too.

My only complaint about Mr. Parks—and, for that matter, about his show—is that he is occasionally overwhelmed by his own cuteness. Come to think of it, the whole industry is obsessed with that word "cute"—everything's got to be cute now—and I wish they'd cut it out and grow up. After all, television is five years old now. It's a big boy.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

The Expansive Bert Parks

I can spot a trend as well as the next fellow, I keep telling myself, and the trend I have spotted—stand back, men! This is dynamite—is Bert Parks. Bert Parks on "Stop the Music." Bert Parks on "Break the Bank." Bert Parks on a thrice-weekly afternoon show (NBC 3:30 p. m. EDT, Mon., Wed., Fri.) which is aptly named the Bert Parks show.

John Crosby

Some years ago the trend was Arthur Godfrey. Arthur Godfrey time. Arthur Godfrey and His Friends. Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts. Fears were expressed during this phase of Mr. Godfrey's expanding economy, that he would eventually engulf all of the Columbia Broadcasting System. I was looking forward with some alarm to reviewing Young Dr. Godfrey, Our Gal Godfrey, Godfrey Goes A-Shopping, and the rest of them. But the Godfrey expansion was finally halted, conceivably by the anti-trust laws. Now we have the Bert Parks menace.

This has got to be stopped. I can't be looking at Bert Parks all the time. My blood pressure is high enough as it is. Where Mr. Godfrey confines himself to one network, Mr. Parks is generously distributed over two, NBC possessing about twice as much Parks as ABC. This seems only fair. Mr. Parks, who also emcees the Macy parade from time to time just to keep from perishing of inactivity, is a personable, high-voltage operator with a grin you can read by.

He originally sprang into prominence by giving away Cadillacs, mink coats and 12 year's supplies of shaving cream on "Stop the Music." You might think this is easy, but it isn't. Parks can give away $20,000 with a flourish no one else has ever quite matched. It's too bad, I keep thinking, that Parks wasn't born a Rockefeller. Then all those millions could have been distributed in full sight of all of us on television. Parks would have passed the moola around in bundles of $1,000 bills while buzzers sounded, lights flashed and Betty Ann Grove sang "Millionaires Are Hard to Find" in the background.

But let's stop woolgathering. Somewhere during his charitable activities, it was discovered that Parks had a distinct flair for comedy, a passable voice and, after taxes, a $40,000 personality which is quite a lot of show in the surtax brackets. This led to the afternoon show, an enterprise in which Parks doesn't give away so much as a can of sardines. His hand wanders absently to his pockets now and then but then he remembers and gets back to business.

The afternoon show is a very pleasant half hour and certainly an ambitious one for afternoon TV. It is awash with gimmicks, sight gags and elaborate song cues and is so strikingly informal that, as a gesture of respect, you ought to remove your shoes while watching it. In the middle of a song, "We Joined the Navy to See the World," Parks and his sidekick Bobby Sherwood, a reformed bandleader, will arrange to have a near-sighted admiral walk overboard—"We lose more admirals"—and then go right on with the song.

It's a prank, really, rather than comedy, but then TV comedy is getting awfully prankish. On the Parks show, they play pranks on one another, Mr. Parks shooting arrows at Mr. Sherwood, Mr. Sherwood shooting them back. One of the chief victims is Betty Ann Grove, one of the fairly permanent members of Mr. Parks' entourage, who has been asked to do everything except ride elephants to put a song across. She's a remarkably good-natured and terribly agile girl and so far has escaped serious injury, though I wouldn's gamble a farthing on her if I were an insurance company. Like Mr. Parks, she is talented in all directions—songs, dances, gags—and, I expect, she could run the roulette tables in an emergency, too.

My only complaint about Mr. Parks—and, for that matter, about his show—is that he is occasionally overwhelmed by his own cuteness. Come to think of it, the whole industry is obsessed with that word "cute"—everything's got to be cute now—and I wish they'd cut it out and grow up. After all, television is five years old now. It's a big boy.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Humphrey Bogart

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 23 (INS)—The conversation Humphrey Bogart was having with Darryl Zanuck at Romanoff's meant more than just social table hopping. Zanuck, was talking to Bogey about starring in "Deadline U. S. A.," Richard Brooks' newspaper story.

Well, it's all settled now, and Bogey starts work the third week in October at 20th Century-Fox with Sol Siegel as his producer. A company goes to New York tomorrow to film backgrounds.

This means that Bogey moves to 20th before his bride, Lauren Bacall, arrives there. Baby won't report until January 1, and so far there is no story ready for her. She couldn't get back from London in time for "Phone Call From A Stranger."

I call Bogey very smart giving up all idea of continuing his independent pictures. Most actors are better off acting than producing.

•—•—•

Gene Tierney flys to the Argentine in about a week to make "Way Of A Goucho" for 20th. Jacques Tourneur will direct her.

Gene has just returned to New York from a summer in France and Italy.

This time, she will not take her daughter with her because, while the little girl thrives on European vacations, Gene feels she should now return to the quiet, normal life of an American child.

If Aly Khan is not served with Rita Hayworth's divorce papers, she will have to wait 30 additional days beyond the 60 now required, then a notice will have to be inserted in the newspapers announcing the divorce.

Rita has already filed for divorce in Reno, but must return there when the Nevada court determines the amount of money to be paid for the support of Yasmin.

If Aly fails to pay, Rita will file for a divorce in California charging child abandonment and non-support.

Rita is hopping mad over Aly's attitude and her attorneys are leaving no stone unturned to have everything legal.

Although Lana Turner has only six months to go she has not yet signed that MGM contract which has been so long in discussion.

If the contract is not signed, Lana will be the most sought after free lance actress in Hollywood. She'll have jobs on all sides, for she's one girl whose popularity never fails. Even in pictures which might have been better, Lana was good.

I suppose the contract with MGM will be eventually settled. These things take a long time.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Marie Wilson went with Allan Nixon to see "Pick Up" in which he has a big part. Then they went arm in arm to the King's Restaurant for supper. Wouldn't surprise me in the least if Marie goes back to him.

Patti Andrews, of the Andrews sisters, will marry Wally Wechsler, her piano player, when she returns from Europe. Patti's ex, Marty Melcher, is now the husband of Doris Day.

Ginny Simms says there is no truth in the rumor that she is marrying Bob Calhoun, Bakersfield oil man. "I see Bob a lot but we have no plans to marry," said Ginny.

Patti Page will have her tonsils yanked in Chicago before she comes west to sing on the Bing Crosby show.

Doris Duke gave a birthday party honoring Cobina Wright. Neither Cobina nor I are telling our age.

According to Dorothy Manners, who attended the party (I was sorry I couldn't go), it was a splendiferous affair, lots of fun, Jimmie McHugh at the piano and everybody singing and a jazz band playing.

Betsy Von Furstenberg and Nicky Hilton holding hands, were in a group of three with Conrad Hilton, who has given his blessing.

Sonja Henie and Winthrop Gardiner, Norma Shearer and Marty Arrouge, Evie and Van Johnson were among those who sang happy birthday.

At Romanoff's Jack Benny, out of the hospital and looking fine, dining with Mary, the Tyrone Powers, and Dinah Shore and George Montgomery.

The thieves who robbed Gig Young's apartment returned the loot and left it at the front door with a note, "We're sorry."

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

The first road to be built by the U. S. government was the old National Pike, Baltimore, Md., to Wheeling, W. Va.

Andrew Jackson was the first territorial governor of Florida, serving in 1821-22.

WATCH EVERY DISCARD

WATCHING the discards of the dangerous defender is essential to success with some close contracts. If the defender pares his hand down to one holding, you throw him in with a certain suit and make him return what you desire. If he cuts himself to a different kind of lineup, then you give him the lead with a different suit. But, unless you are willing to submit your fate to a pure guess, or sheer luck, you must note his every move and make deductions from each.

West would have had trouble making 3-Spades, and East would have had none in his No Trump game if South had made the expected lead of hearts, after North had supported the suit, as six tricks in spades plus one in each other suit would have made a straight run of nine. But South made it tough by opening his diamond K. East let that and the Q win, then took the third diamond with his A.

Feeling sure that South had both the heart A and club K, East decided his sole chance was a throw-in play. To build the format for it, he ran six spade tricks and watched South's discards carefully. They were the heart 2, 7 and 9 marking him with just a singleton remaining, and then the diamond 4. Meanwhile East threw off his own heart 3, club 2 and 8 and heart 6. South was now marked with one heart, one diamond and two clubs. East then put him in with the heart K to the A. South could score the diamond 7, but then had to lead from the club K into the A-Q to give East the last two tricks and game.

If South had retained a heart with his A, relinquishing his last diamond, East could have scored the club A and led the Q to the K. South could then have scored his heart A, but would have had to lead his last heart to the K to give East his ninth trick.

Delicate fragrances can be subtly used to harmonize your mood and your gracious ways with the season!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It is said that the sails of Cleopatra's barge were so highly perfumed that long before it could be seen, a lovely fragrance heralded the approach. There's a dramtic entrance—and a cue for you, too! There are dozens of tricks you moderns can use with subtle effectiveness undreamed of in the days when the fabled Cleopatra queened it.

Accenting Personality

To delicately accent the gracious way of your life spray a clean, spicy scent on the light bulbs of lamps of your living room. Lighting the lamps will activate the fragrance and dispel any staleness of the air. Sachets placed on hooks holding curtain tiebacks or tucked into the corners of upholstered furniture are an additional or alternate way of dispersing fragrant freshness in a room. A sense of beauty will pervade your personal living quarters if you spray your bedroom and bed linen with a delicate, bouquet-scented toilet water or cologne each day.

Every time you take a frock from your closet, you are sure to feel secure in your feminine appeal if it has just a whisper of fragrance. This can be accomplished by spraying the walls of your closets with cologne, by slipping sachets into the pockets of your suits and dresses, by looping them around clothes hangers or tucking them into glove, hosiery, handkerchief and lingerie containers.

And here's a tip to the frugal. Instead of discarding an empty perfume bottle, place it in a drawer, where long after the last drop is gone the fragrance will linger.

Now and then give a new lift to your charm with a change in your scents. The turn of a season is propitious for selecting a new fragrance that expresses the mood of the weather and the clothes that you choose to match it and your social calendar.

Specially For Autumn

For autumn, your choice might be vivacious and spicy, clear-as-the-air, woodsy, dusky oriental, or hot-house floral. But take your time in choosing. Since your olfactory nerves easily become confused, never try more than three scents at one session at the perfume counter. Test those under consideration on your own wrist because the chemistry of your skin can alter a fragrance. If in doubt about your selection, take several home in the inexpensive purse-container size for further testing.

When you choose a scent that is right for you, your clothes and the occasion, you add the "je ne sais quoi" to your charm.

Tomorrow: Fashioning your waist for fashion.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WATCH EVERY DISCARD

WATCHING the discards of the dangerous defender is essential to success with some close contracts. If the defender pares his hand down to one holding, you throw him in with a certain suit and make him return what you desire. If he cuts himself to a different kind of lineup, then you give him the lead with a different suit. But, unless you are willing to submit your fate to a pure guess, or sheer luck, you must note his every move and make deductions from each.

West would have had trouble making 3-Spades, and East would have had none in his No Trump game if South had made the expected lead of hearts, after North had supported the suit, as six tricks in spades plus one in each other suit would have made a straight run of nine. But South made it tough by opening his diamond K. East let that and the Q win, then took the third diamond with his A.

Feeling sure that South had both the heart A and club K, East decided his sole chance was a throw-in play. To build the format for it, he ran six spade tricks and watched South's discards carefully. They were the heart 2, 7 and 9 marking him with just a singleton remaining, and then the diamond 4. Meanwhile East threw off his own heart 3, club 2 and 8 and heart 6. South was now marked with one heart, one diamond and two clubs. East then put him in with the heart K to the A. South could score the diamond 7, but then had to lead from the club K into the A-Q to give East the last two tricks and game.

If South had retained a heart with his A, relinquishing his last diamond, East could have scored the club A and led the Q to the K. South could then have scored his heart A, but would have had to lead his last heart to the K to give East his ninth trick.

Delicate fragrances can be subtly used to harmonize your mood and your gracious ways with the season!

SECRETS OF CHARM
By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

It is said that the sails of Cleopatra's barge were so highly perfumed that long before it could be seen, a lovely fragrance heralded the approach. There's a dramtic entrance—and a cue for you, too! There are dozens of tricks you moderns can use with subtle effectiveness undreamed of in the days when the fabled Cleopatra queened it.

Accenting Personality

To delicately accent the gracious way of your life spray a clean, spicy scent on the light bulbs of lamps of your living room. Lighting the lamps will activate the fragrance and dispel any staleness of the air. Sachets placed on hooks holding curtain tiebacks or tucked into the corners of upholstered furniture are an additional or alternate way of dispersing fragrant freshness in a room. A sense of beauty will pervade your personal living quarters if you spray your bedroom and bed linen with a delicate, bouquet-scented toilet water or cologne each day.

Every time you take a frock from your closet, you are sure to feel secure in your feminine appeal if it has just a whisper of fragrance. This can be accomplished by spraying the walls of your closets with cologne, by slipping sachets into the pockets of your suits and dresses, by looping them around clothes hangers or tucking them into glove, hosiery, handkerchief and lingerie containers.

And here's a tip to the frugal. Instead of discarding an empty perfume bottle, place it in a drawer, where long after the last drop is gone the fragrance will linger.

Now and then give a new lift to your charm with a change in your scents. The turn of a season is propitious for selecting a new fragrance that expresses the mood of the weather and the clothes that you choose to match it and your social calendar.

Specially For Autumn

For autumn, your choice might be vivacious and spicy, clear-as-the-air, woodsy, dusky oriental, or hothouse floral. But take your time in choosing. Since your olfactory nerves easily become confused, never try more than three scents at one session at the perfume counter. Test those under consideration on your own wrist because the chemistry of your skin can alter a fragrance. If in doubt about your selection, take several home in the inexpensive purse-container size for further testing.

When you choose a scent that is right for you, your clothes and the occasion, you add the "je ne sais quoi" to your charm.

Tomorrow: Fashioning your waist for fashion.

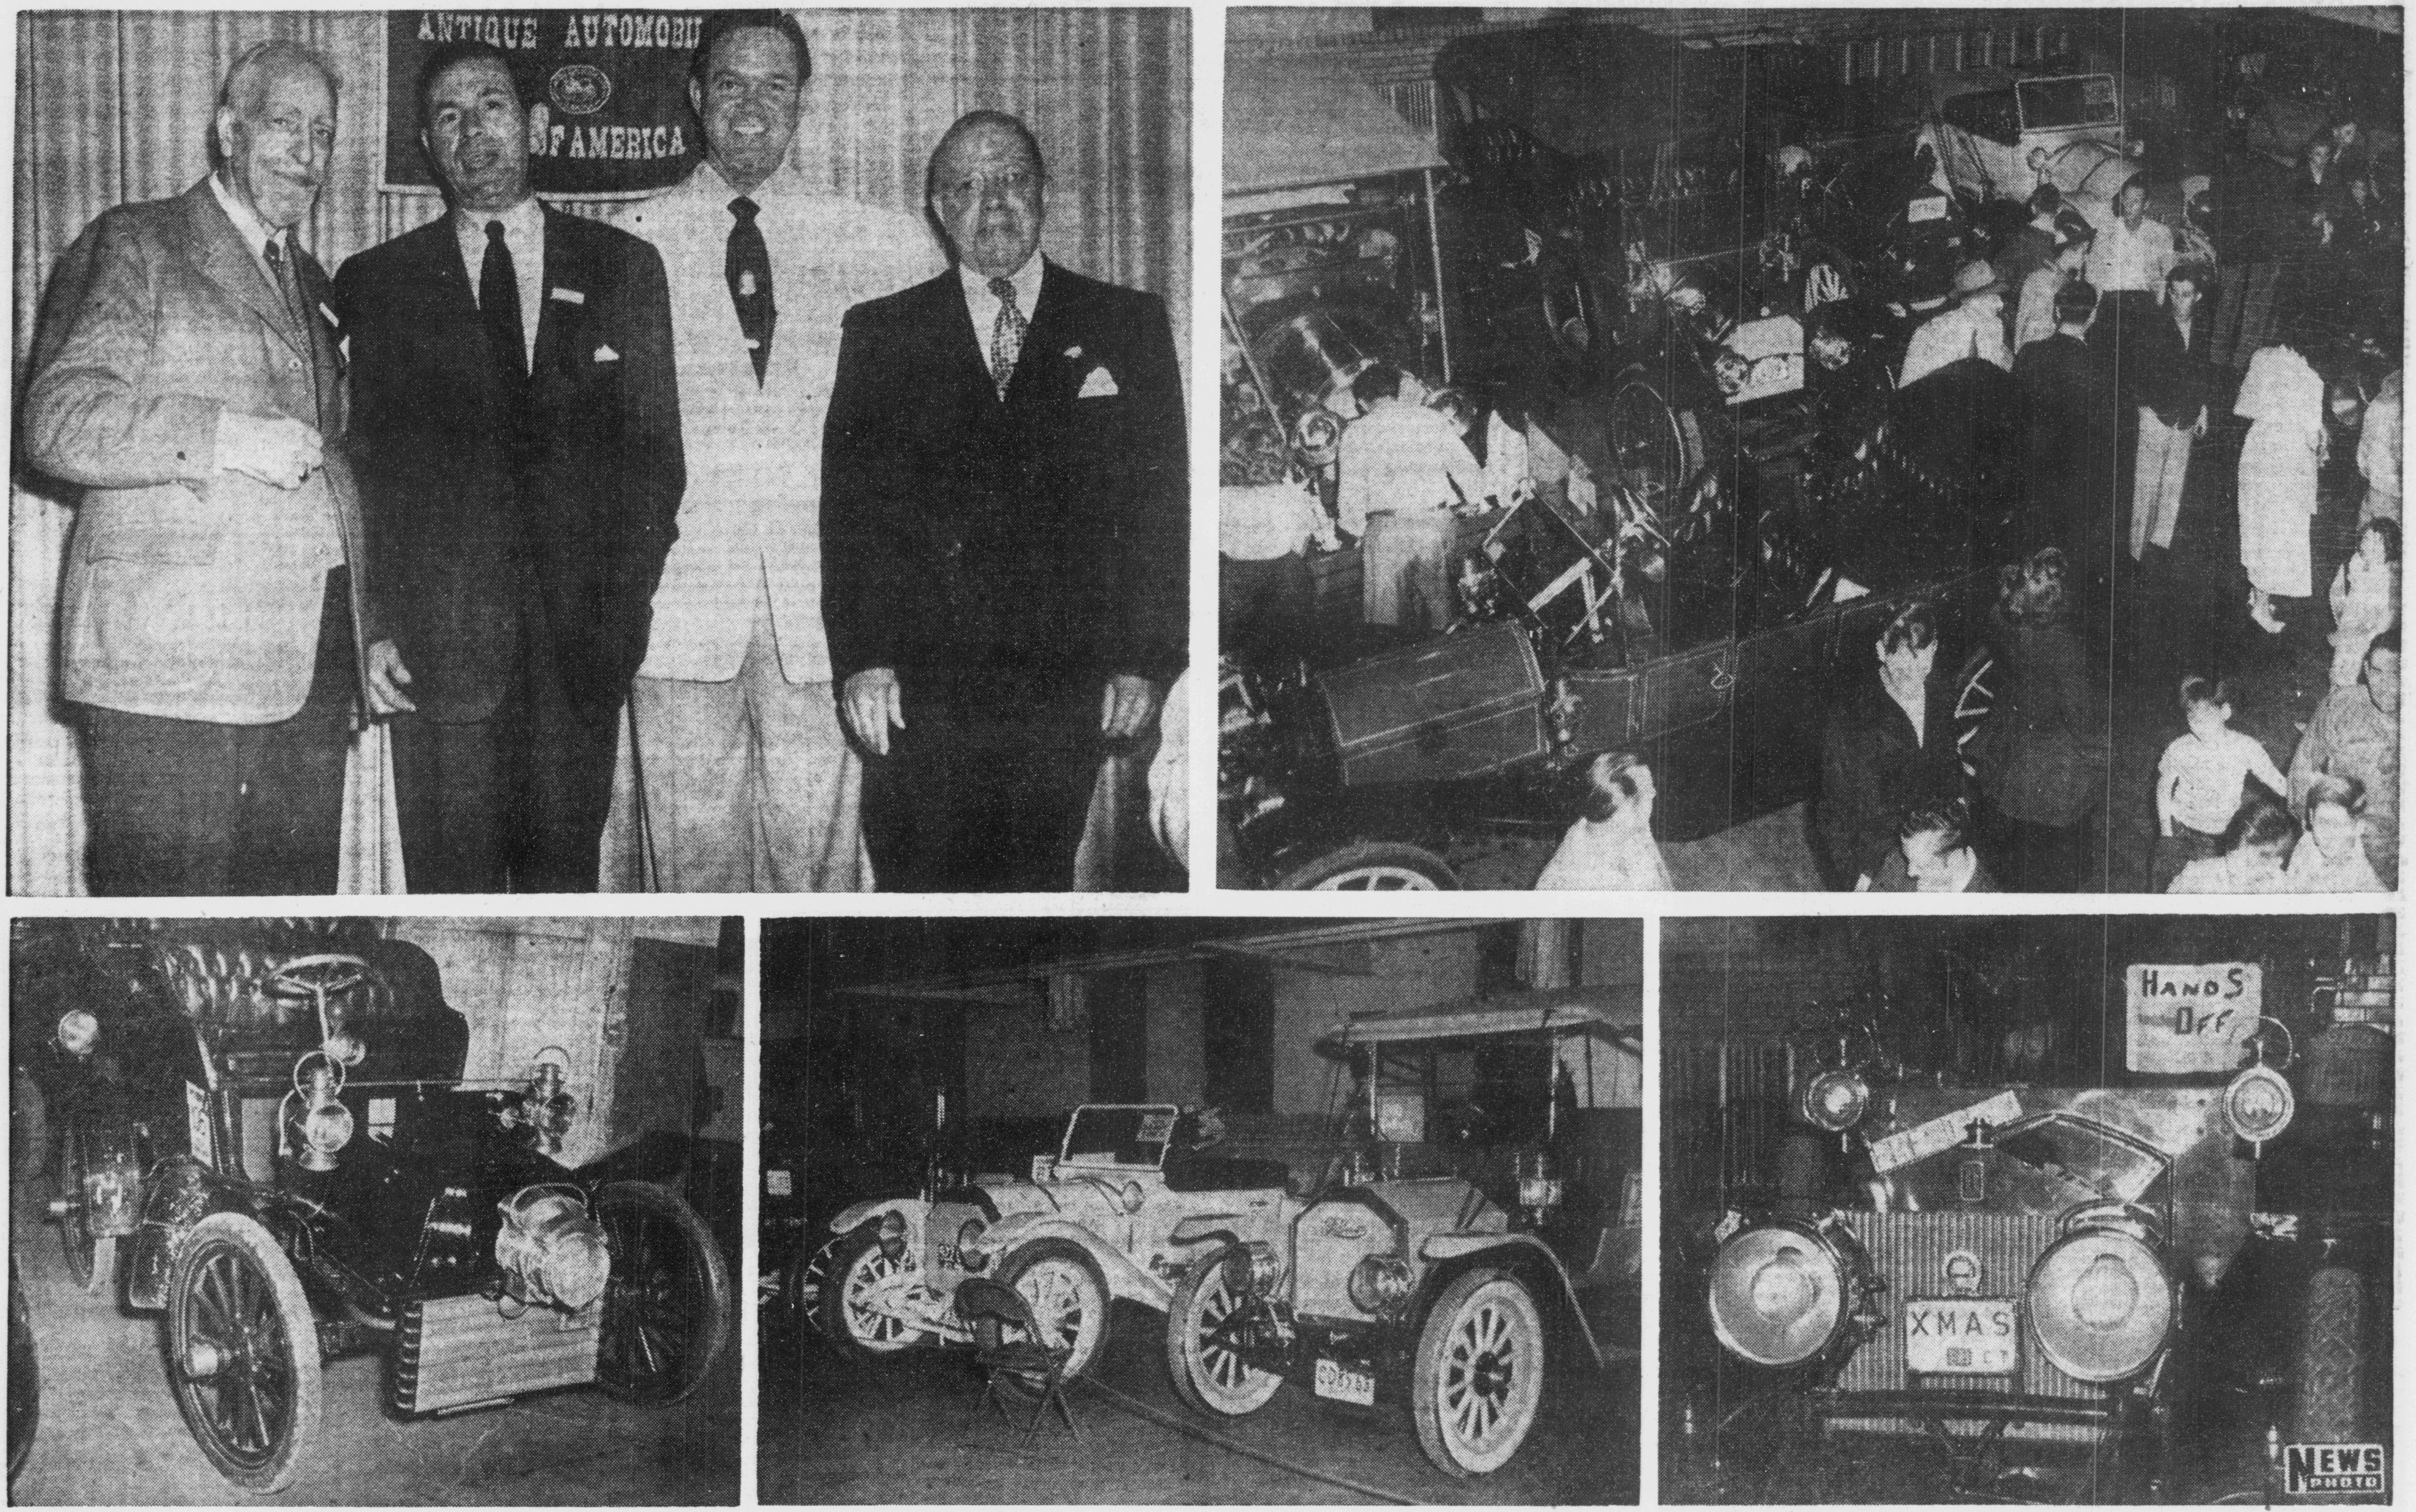
Thousands Greet Glidden Tourists In Queen City



ANTIQUE AUTOS ATTRACT INTEREST — More than 100 ancient cars arrived here yesterday and last night from Pittsburgh on the first leg of the 1951 Glidden Tour, attracting considerable attention as they honked and putted through downtown streets. In the top left picture are the four principal speakers at a dinner last night for the travelers at Ali Ghan Country Club. They are (left to right) Colonel Augustus Post, one of the founders of the American Automobile Association and director of three of the early tours; David T. Davis, local insurance man. James Melton, radio and opera tenor and president of the Antique Automobile Club of America, which sponsors the tours; and Harold M. Smith, former manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce. In the top right photo are some of the many ancient vehicles which were housed overnight at the State Armory, and part of the crowd which came to see them. At bottom left are a single-cylinder Cadillac, only "one-lung" auto in the tour. In the center are a venerable Mercer made in Trenton, N. J., and a 1910 Pullman. At right is Melton's 1907 Rolls, with its Connecticut license, an abbreviated Christmas message. Melton's car developed mechanical trouble on the way from Pittsburgh, but he arrived in plenty of time for last night's dinner. The cars will assemble at 9 a.m. today near the State Armory for a parade through downtown streets at 10 a.m. They will move up South Centre to Baltimore Street, to South Mechanic, Williams and South Centre, then through The Narrows to Hyndman and Bedford, Pa.

Chalk Hill Woman Dies In Car Crash

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Dennis, 19, of nearby Chalk Hill, died en route to a Uniontown hospital today after the car in which she was riding overturned on a sharp curve, throwing her out of the vehicle.

Her husband suffered head and body injuries, and her sister-in-law, Catherine Rae Dennis, 22, suffered head and scalp wounds. The group was en route from Friendsville, Md., when the car overturned at Gourley's Lake.

Old But Shiny

gets only about 10 miles to the gallon and its 30-inch tires cost a small fortune.

Even more expensive to operate is the 1920 Regal driven by James C. Sutton of Bristol, Pa., and Stanley Wilkinson of Philadelphia, who are decked out in caps, goggles and raccoon coats.

Sutton said:

"It cruises about 55 miles an hour but you get only six or seven miles to a gallon of gas."

He found the Regal in a junkyard four years ago and paid $75 for it.

W. S. Weiant, Newark, O., left Pittsburgh in a 1911 Renault, made in Paris to sell for $10,000. Last year it won AACA's National Trophy for the best restoration job.

Weiant is a vegetable grower with an engineering degree from Cornell.

"Working on old cars is all the engineering he does," said Mrs. Weiant, "but it has been fun for both of us."

What's the fascination of old-time autos? Says Don McCray of Willmette, Ill., who's driving a 1922 Hudson:

"It's a hobby where millionaires mix with grease monkeys. Most of the club members do their own work. You can get an unrestored car for $50 or $100 and after that, you can't measure the car's value in money—it's just worth hours and hours of your time."

The original Glidden Tours were staged by two auto manufacturers of the day. They received their present name in 1904 when Charles J. Glidden, a New England telephone executive, donated a prize to the winner.

Today's Sermonette

had happened he was angry and said, "Tomorrow the builder shall die."

That night he had a dream that he was in heaven, and there he saw a beautiful palace. He asked to whom it belonged, and an angel replied, "It is your palace, built by the man you have condemned to die." The next day the builder was pardoned, for he had built a temple where it would never fall. The glory of this world is not in thrones and palaces but in the hearts and souls of men.

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?" How true are the words of Paul, and yet, how often we fail to allow the spirit to guide us in our living. We have God within, but the house is not always dedicated to Him. As we think of what we are, do we not owe it to God to keep these temples clean and to use them for a better life.. Our bodies are not ours to use as we please; our minds are not ours to pollute with the filth of the age; and our souls are not ours to send into eternal destruction. We owe it to God to keep these temples clean.

Then, we owe it to ourselves to keep these temples clean and to dedicate them to things worthwhile. The one who is unclean does not respect himself and he has no respect for God or his fellowmen. Should we not say again and again the words of the poem:

"I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know;
Always to look myself straight in the eye.
I don't want to stand with the setting sun,
And hate myself for the things I've done.
I want to go out with my head erect;
I want to desire all men's respect;
But here in the struggle for fame and pelf
I want to be able to respect myself."

We cannot lay the foundation for a better life until we begin the work within ourselves, within the walls of these temples which God has made.

On a monument in Boston, dedicated to William Channing, these words are written: "What appeal to men could be better than to challenge them to be worthy of their Divine origin and destiny." We are the temple of God and the spirit of God dwells in us. Are we worthy of our Divine origin and destiny?

Chalk Hill Woman Dies In Car Crash

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Dennis, 19, of nearby Chalk Hill, died en route to a Uniontown hospital today after the car in which she was riding overturned on a sharp curve, throwing her out of the vehicle.

Her husband suffered head and body injuries, and her sister-in-law, Catherine Rae Dennis, 22, suffered head and scalp wounds. The group was en route from Friendsville, Md., when the car overturned at Gourley's Lake.

gets only about 10 miles to the gallon and its 30-inch tires cost a small fortune.

Even more expensive to operate is the 1920 Regal driven by James C. Sutton of Bristol, Pa., and Stanley Wilkinson of Philadelphia, who are decked out in caps, goggles and raccoon coats.

Sutton said:

"It cruises about 55 miles an hour but you get only six or seven miles to a gallon of gas."

He found the Regal in a junkyard four years ago and paid $75 for it.

W. S. Weiant, Newark, O., left Pittsburgh in a 1911 Renault, made in Paris to sell for $10,000. Last year it won AACA's National Trophy for the best restoration job.

Weiant is a vegetable grower with an engineering degree from Cornell.

"Working on old cars is all the engineering he does," said Mrs. Weiant, "but it has been fun for both of us."

What's the fascination of old-time autos? Says Don McCray of Willmette, Ill., who's driving a 1922 Hudson:

"It's a hobby where millionaires mix with grease monkeys. Most of the club members do their own work. You can get an unrestored car for $50 or $100 and after that, you can't measure the car's value in money—it's just worth hours and hours of your time."

The original Glidden Tours were staged by two auto manufacturers of the day. They received their present name in 1904 when Charles J. Glidden, a New England telephone executive, donated a prize to the winner.

Today's Sermonette

had happened he was angry and said, "Tomorrow the builder shall die."

That night he had a dream that he was in heaven, and there he saw a beautiful palace. He asked to whom it belonged, and an angel replied, "It is your palace, built by the man you have condemned to die." The next day the builder was pardoned, for he had built a temple where it would never fall. The glory of this world is not in thrones and palaces but in the hearts and souls of men.

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?" How true are the words of Paul, and yet, how often we fail to allow the spirit to guide us in our living. We have God within, but the house is not always dedicated to Him. As we think of what we are, do we not owe it to God to keep these temples clean and to use them for a better life. Our bodies are not ours to use as we please; our minds are not ours to pollute with the filth of the age; and our souls are not ours to send into eternal destruction. We owe it to God to keep these temples clean.

Then, we owe it to ourselves to keep these temples clean and to dedicate them to things worthwhile. The one who is unclean does not respect himself and he has no respect for God or his fellowmen. Should we not say again and again the words of the poem:

"I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know;
Always to look myself straight in the eye.
I don't want to stand with the setting sun,
And hate myself for the things I've done.
I want to go out with my head erect;
I want to desire all men's respect;
But here in the struggle for fame and pelf
I want to be able to respect myself."

We cannot lay the foundation for a better life until we begin the work within ourselves, within the walls of these temples which God has made.

On a monument in Boston, dedicated to William Channing, these words are written: "What appeal to men could be better than to challenge them to be worthy of their Divine origin and destiny." We are the temple of God and the spirit of God dwells in us. Are we worthy of our Divine origin and destiny?

Oakland Wins Mt. Top Title; Westvaco Edges Hyndman, 8-7

Amvets Sweep Series With Terra Alta

Bob Glaze Scores 16th Win, 8 to 4; Lyons Hits Homer

Oakland's Amvets won the championship of the Mountain Top Baseball League yesterday by making it two straight over Terra Alta in their scheduled best-of-three game series. The score was 8-4.

The Amvets, winners of the second half race in the split season schedule, copped the series opener last week by the score of 6-2.

Terra Alta battled the home team on even terms until the fourth inning when a four-run outburst, featuring Jimmy Lyons' two-run homer, settled the issue.

Bob Glaze, veteran right hander, went the route for Oakland and posted win No. 16 against two losses. He struck out seven to up his season's total to 137. He has issued 20 walks in 18 games. The Oakland ace kept 10 hits well spaced.

Lyons with a homer and single and Glaze with a pair of one-base knocks shared four of the eight hits yielded by Joe Fraley. The Terra Alta pitcher fanned three. Watson and Wotring had two hits each for the West Virginians who won the first half race with a 9-0 record.

Jack Thomas and Jimmy Lyons, center fielders, featured by turning in several nice catches.

The score:

Maglie Scores 22nd Triumph

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — Sal Maglie kept New York's faint pennant hopes alive today as he pitched the Giants to a 4-1 triumph over the Boston Braves for his 22nd victory. The triumph enabled the Giants to remain three games behind league-leading Brooklyn who downed Philadelphia, 6-2.

Maglie became the first Giant pitcher since Carl Hubbell in 1937 to win 22 games.

Maglie was nicked for 13 hits, but walked none, fanned seven and was practically untouchable in the pinches. The Braves stranded ten. Box:

Tigers Jolt Indians, 9-1

Tribe's Flag Hopes Fade, Trucks Fans 10

DETROIT, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers delivered what may have been the knockout punch to Cleveland's pennant bid as Virgil (Fire) Trucks hurled a masterful seven-hitter for the Bengals' third straight win over the Tribe 9-1 before 42,623 today.

The loss dropped the Indians two and a half games behind the first-place New York Yankees, who today defeated Boston 6-1. The Yanks need to win only two of their remaining six games to clinch a title tie even if the Indians take their remaining three.

Although Vic Wertz smashed a three-run homer in a five-run Tiger sixth, Trucks bunted across the first two Detroit runs to start the Indians reeling.

Trucks was the fire balling Virgil of old as he yielded one tainted run in the second and struck out 10 including Tribe cleanup man Luke Easter three straight times.

Mike Garcia, one of Cleveland's three 20-game winners, was as helpless as Bob Feller and Bob Lemon in the two earlier games of the Tribe's disastrous final season series.

Garcia left the game after six innings, allowing eight of Detroit's 15 hits and was charged with his 13th loss against 20 wins.

The Tribe which had won 16 of 17 games from Detroit before this series made its only run off Trucks when Al Rosen doubled and came home on Jerry Priddy's error at second base.

After that the Indians were helpless before Trucks' swift stuff, not a Tribesman reaching third the rest of the way.

It was the fifth straight win, and his fourth complete game, for Trucks, now owning a 12-8 record.

The Tribe moves to Chicago for a single game Tuesday night and then meets the Tigers in two games closing the season at Cleveland. Box:

Notre Dame, Vols, Cadets Open Season

Indiana, Mississippi State, Villanova Are Saturday Opponents

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — Big, powerful Tennessee, considered the team most likely to succeed, opens its 1951 football season Saturday along with those two once-mighty but now-doubtful elevens — Notre Dame and Army.

Tennessee, top-ranked in the pre-season Associated Press poll, will unleash its devastating single wing attack against Mississippi State at Knoxville as the collegiate sports hits full stride.

General Bob Neyland, a wise but wary gentleman, will have his Tennessee Cotton Bowl champions on the lookout, as that ancient codger—'Old Man Upset"—is still on the loose.

The old guy, who threw so many knockout blows last season, showed up again Saturday, when Kansas upended Texas Christian, 27 to 13, and Georgia Tech upset Southern Methodsit, 21 to 7.

But form held firm—although by the slightest of margins—as Texas nipped Kentucky, 7 to 6, in the day's big game at Austin. And highly-regarded Michigan State had to use a freak touchdown to shade Oregon State, 6 to 0.

Villanova Tests Army

Attractive intersectional battles freely dot this week's schedule but chief interest will be divided between South Bend, Ind., where Notre Dame entertains Indiana, and at West Point, N. Y., where Army's crib-riddled Cadets play host to Villanova.

By normal standards, a team which loses all but two of its varsity players—as did Army in the recent scandal—figures to have the roughest sort of going.

But because the Army is rich with tradition, and because Red Blaik still is head coach, we can expect some highly-emotional, if not winning performances from the Cadets this fall.

Virtually the same goes for Notre Dame, which will be trying to bounce back from last season's dismal 4-4-1 record. The Irish also boast fierce pride, and they, too, have a brilliant leader—Frank Leahy.

Spartans Face Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., also will be the scene of some red-hot fireworks as Michigan's Rose Bowl Champions entertain Michigan State, second in the pre-season poll.

Ohio State's Buckeyes, ranked No. 3 in the poll and figured to clean up in the Big 10, will play Southern Methodist at Columbus this Saturday in another top game.

Some of the other leading intersectional games send Duke to Pittsburgh, Washington to Minnesota, Colorado to Northwestern, California to Penn, Texas to Purdue and UCLA to Illinois.

Navy, still hepped up over its win over Army last December, starts its season in Yale Bowl against Herman Hickman's Bulldogs, 48-0 winners over Bates.

Preacher Roe Notches 10th Straight Win

Posts No. 22 Of Year Over Phillies, 6-2

BROOKLYN, Sept. 23 ([illegible]) —Preacher Roe pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers a step nearer the National League pennant today as he turned back the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-2. The triumph was Roe's 22nd compared to two defeats and also his tenth straight.

Preacher Roe

The victory enabled the Dodgers to maintain their three-game lead over the runner-up New York Giants who defeated Boston, 4-1.

Home runs by Roy Campanella and Andy Pafko featured the Dodger scoring against Bubba Church and Andy Hansen. Campanella, who returned to duty last night after missing a few games on account of a beaning, homered off Church in the first with one on. Pafko sewed it us with a two-run homer in the eighth off Hansen.

The victory marked the second time this year that Roe has won ten straight games. The veteran lefthander began the season with ten consecutive victories.

A crowd of 19,135 saw the National League's top pitcher become the first Brooklyn southpaw to win 22 games since Nap Rucker in 1911. Having lost only two games, Roe also raised his own all-time senior loop percentage record to .917.

Campanella led the Dodgers 12-hit attack with four safeties including his 32nd homer with one on in the first inning. The circuit clout was one more than the All-Star catcher hit last year and gave him 100 RBI's for the first time in his career. Box:

Yanks Increase Lead As Raschi Masters Bosox

Vic Wins 20th, 6-1; Mize's Clutch Hit Breaks Tie In 7th

BOSTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Big Vic Raschi manhandled Boston in the tight spots today to bolster the pennant hopes of the league-leading New York Yankees with a 6-1 victory, his 20th of the season.

The husky righthander wriggled out of serious trouble in the early innings, stamped out a threat in the sixth and rode home to his third straight 20-win year on a blast of 14 Yank hits.

Snarled in a 1-1 tie with Lefty Chuck Stobbs for six innings, Raschi scrambled home free on a three-run outburst in the seventh. Pinchhitter Johnny Mize delivered a clutch single that broke the deadlock.

Hank Bauer and Jerry Coleman each had three hits, and Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald and Mize two each in this final road game of the Yank season.

After the three run rally in the seventh off Stobbs and Ellis Kinder, making his 61st appearance, the Yanks tore into Ray Scarborough for another pair in the eighth. That finished the Red Sox, in their final home appearance before 28,712 fans.

Raschi's deliberate eight-hit job assured the Yanks of a comfortable lead as they head home to finish the season with six more games, five against Boston. Tomorrow is an off day for both the Yanks and Indians but both play Tuesday—New York against Philadelphia and Cleveland at Chicago in a night game.

By his determined performance of great clutch pitching Raschi gave the Yanks two 20-game winners for the first time since 1937, when both Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing crashed the exclusive club.

Lefty Ed Lopat is the Yanks other 20-game winner this season.

Although this was only the Yankee second win in 11 Fenway Park starts and their sixth in 17 meetings with Boston, they finished with a creditable road mark of 42-34. One of the 77 away games had to be transferred to the Yankee Stadium.

Joe DiMaggio's chief contribution to this important victory was a sensational running stab of Fred Hatfield's fly in short center in the second. Joe barely plucked the ball off the grass tops only some 20 feet on the grass behind second base. Gil McDougald also contributed a fine stop of a hard smash by Walt Dropo in the fourth, probably saving a run.

Elated at foiling the Fenway jinx by taking two of three in their final visit, Yankee manager Casey Stengel picked Lefty Bob Kuzava (11-6) to face the Athletics in the Stadium Tuesday afternoon. Bob had beaten the A's twice, once with Washington and one as a Yank.

The loss left only a mathematical chance for Boston. Now five back with eight to play, any combination of three Yanks wins or Red Sox defeats would apply the final ax. Box:

Turnesa Wins Reading Open

Jim's Total Is 280, Edges Jack Burke

READING, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP)—Jim Turnesa, one of six golfing brothers, shot a three over par 74 today to win the $15,000 Reading Open Golf Tournament with a 72 hole total of 280 at the Berkleigh Country Club. It was his first major tournament win of the year.

Turnesa's four round total was four under par for the 6,600 yard layout. It gave him a two stroke edge over Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., who finished with a brilliant 36-32—68, three under par.

Tied for third spot with 285's were Skee Riegel from Tulsa, Okla. and Jimmy Clark, 30-year-old blond from Laguna Beach, Calif. Riegel posted a 33-36—69, his best round of the tournament, on the last tour over the 6,600 Berkleigh layout. Clark shot a 36-39—75, four over par, his worst round.

One stroke behind them were Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N. Y.; Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., and bulky Clayton Heafner, of Charlotte, N. C.

Ed (Porky) Oliver from Lemont, Ill., who had a 296 for the 72 holes, disqualified himself after finishing in the money with 296. He reported he played a ball that was out of bounds on the 10th hole.

Buddy Lutz of Reading, Pa., led the amateur field with a total of 300. He shot a 37-39—76 on the final round.

Papermakers Wipe Out 4-Run Deficit, Take 2-0 Lead In Series

Westvaco put on a storybook finish in the ninth inning yesterday at Memorial Park, Westernport, to defeat the Hyndman Firemen by the score of 8-7 and moved within one game of winning the championship of the Bi-State Baseball League.

Trailing 7-3 going into the final frame, the Papermakers chased five runs across the platter to pull the ball game out of the fire.

Three Successive Homers

In winning the ball game on a garrison finish, the Westvaco Club established a new record for the tri-state area when the first three batsmen in the ninth inning smashed home runs in succession. "Bud" Mosser, first up, hammered the ball over the left field barrier. Joe Inskeep smacked the pellet over the right field fence, driving Shields to the showers. Then Leo Ryan picked out one of Relief Pitcher Geist's offerings and banged it over the left field fence for the third round-tripper.

Marsh flied to right field. "Woody" Woodson was safe on an error by first sacker Harry Minnicks. Manager Frank Patrone beat out a slow roller between the mound and first base, sending Woodson to third. Lang beat out a bunt, scoring Woodson with the run that knotted the count at 7-7. Lauber replaced Geist on the hill for Hyndman. Sloey threw the ball over Lauber's head and Patrone advanced to third from where he scored the winning marker when Muir slapped a single to right.

Westvaco outhit the Firemen, 12-11, and scored its second straight win in the best-of-five final playoff series. Bobby Raines twirled Westvaco to a 7-3 decision over the Pennsylvanians in the series opener on Saturday at Hyndman.

Amvets Sweep Series With Terra Alta

Bob Glaze Scores 16th Win, 8 to 4; Lyons Hits Homer

Oakland's Amvets won the championship of the Mountain Top Baseball League yesterday by making it two straight over Terra Alta in their scheduled best-of-three game series. The score was 8-4.

The Amvets, winners of the second half race in the split season schedule, copped the series opener last week by the score of 6-2.

Terra Alta battled the home team on even terms until the fourth inning when a four-run outburst, featuring Jimmy Lyons' two-run homer, settled the issue.

Bob Glaze, veteran right hander, went the route for Oakland and posted win No. 16 against two losses. He struck out seven to up his season's total to 137. He has issued 20 walks in 18 games. The Oakland ace kept 10 hits well spaced.

Lyons with a homer and single and Glaze with a pair of one-base knocks shared four of the eight hits yielded by Joe Fraley. The Terra Alta pitcher fanned three. Watson and Wotring had two hits each for the West Virginians who won the first half race with a 9-0 record.

Jack Thomas and Jimmy Lyons, center fielders, featured by turning in several nice catches.

The score:

TERRA ALTA ... 002 000 020—4 10 5
OAKLAND ... 011 402 00x—8 8 5

Maglie Scores 22nd Triumph

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — Sal Maglie kept New York's faint pennant hopes alive today as he pitched the Giants to a 4-1 triumph over the Boston Braves for his 22nd victory. The triumph enabled the Giants to remain three games behind league-leading Brooklyn who downed Philadelphia, 6-2.

Maglie became the first Giant pitcher since Carl Hubbell in 1937 to win 22 games.

Maglie was nicked for 13 hits, but walked none, fanned seven and was practically untouchable in the pinches. The Braves stranded ten. Box:

Mrs. Killackey turned the trick on hole No. 12 about six years ago. Francis Cook of Frostburg made an ace on hole No. 6 Sunday, September 2.

Tigers Jolt Indians, 9-1

Tribe's Flag Hopes Fade, Trucks Fans 10

DETROIT, Sept. 23 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers delivered what may have been the knockout punch to Cleveland's pennant bid as Virgil (Fire) Trucks hurled a masterful seven-hitter for the Bengals' third straight win over the Tribe 9-1 before 42,623 today.

The loss dropped the Indians two and a half games behind the first-place New York Yankees, who today defeated Boston 6-1. The Yanks need to win only two of their remaining six games to clinch a title tie even if the Indians take their remaining three.

Although Vic Wertz smashed a three-run homer in a five-run Tiger sixth, Trucks bunted across the first two Detroit runs to start the Indians reeling.

Trucks was the fire balling Virgil of old as he yielded one tainted run in the second and struck out 10 including Tribe cleanup man Luke Easter three straight times.

Mike Garcia, one of Cleveland's three 20-game winners, was as helpless as Bob Feller and Bob Lemon in the two earlier games of the Tribe's disastrous final season series.

Garcia left the game after six innings, allowing eight of Detroit's 15 hits and was charged with his 13th loss against 20 wins.

The Tribe which had won 16 of 17 games from Detroit before this series made its only run off Trucks when Al Rosen doubled and came home on Jerry Priddy's error at second base.

After that the Indians were helpless before Trucks' swift stuff, not a Tribesman reaching third the rest of the way.

It was the fifth straight win, and his fourth complete game, for Trucks, now owning a 12-8 record.

The Tribe moves to Chicago for a single game Tuesday night and then meets the Tigers in two games closing the season at Cleveland. Box:

Notre Dame, Vols, Cadets Open Season

Indiana, Mississippi State, Villanova Are Saturday Opponents

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (AP) — Big, powerful Tennessee, considered the team most likely to succeed, opens its 1951 football season Saturday along with those two once-mighty but now-doubtful elevens — Notre Dame and Army.

Tennessee, top-ranked in the pre-season Associated Press poll, will unleash its devastating single wing attack against Mississippi State at Knoxville as the collegiate sports hits full stride.

General Bob Neyland, a wise but wary gentleman, will have his Tennessee Cotton Bowl champions on the lookout, as that ancient codger—'Old Man Upset"—is still on the loose.

The old guy, who threw so many knockout blows last season, showed up again Saturday, when Kansas upended Texas Christian, 27 to 13, and Georgia Tech upset Southern Methodsit, 21 to 7.

But form held firm—although by the slightest of margins—as Texas nipped Kentucky, 7 to 6, in the day's big game at Austin. And highly-regarded Michigan State had to use a freak touchdown to shade Oregon State, 6 to 0.

Villanova Tests Army

Attractive intersectional battles freely dot this week's schedule but chief interest will be divided between South Bend, Ind., where Notre Dame entertains Indiana, and at West Point, N. Y., where Army's crib-riddled Cadets play host to Villanova.

By normal standards, a team which loses all but two of its varsity players—as did Army in the recent scandal—figures to have the roughest sort of going.

But because the Army is rich with tradition, and because Red Blaik still is head coach, we can expect some highly-emotional, if not winning performances from the Cadets this fall.

Virtually the same goes for Notre Dame, which will be trying to bounce back from last season's dismal 4-4-1 record. The Irish also boast fierce pride, and they, too, have a brilliant leader—Frank Leahy.

Spartans Face Michigan

Ann Arbor, Mich., also will be the scene of some red-hot fireworks as Michigan's Rose Bowl Champions entertain Michigan State, second in the pre-season poll.

Ohio State's Buckeyes, ranked No. 3 in the poll and figured to clean up in the Big 10, will play Southern Methodist at Columbus this Saturday in another top game.

Some of the other leading intersectional games send Duke to Pittsburgh, Washington to Minnesota, Colorado to Northwestern, California to Penn, Texas to Purdue and UCLA to Illinois.

Navy, still hepped up over its win over Army last December, starts its season in Yale Bowl against Herman Hickman's Bulldogs, 48-0 winners over Bates.

Other outstanding games include: Arizona at Oregon, Fordham at Dartmouth, Georgia at North Carolina, Georgia Tech at Florida (night), Holy Cross at Harvard, Iowa State at Kansas, Kansas State at Iowa, Kentucky at Mississippi, LSU at Alabama, Marquette at Wisconsin, Oklahoma A. & M. at Missouri, Santa Clara at Washington State, Syracuse at Cornell, TCU at Nebraska and Wake Forest at N. C. State.

While Saturday's action wasn't of great significance there still was enough action to satisfy most grid followers.

Saturday's Scores

In top games, North Carolina trampled N. C. State, 21 to 0; Washington slaughtered Montana, 58 to 7; California blasted Santa Clara, 34 to 0; William and Mary outlasted Boston University, 34-25; Duke trounced South Carolina, 34 to 6; Arkansas whipped Oklahoma A. & M., 42 to 7; Fordham bounced Missouri, 34 to 20; Cincinnati pounded Kansas State, 34 to 0; Stanford downed Oregon, 27 to 20; Southern California defeated Washington State, 31 to 21; Florida pounded The Citadel, 27 to 7; Baylor blanked Houston, 19 to 0, and Detroit nipped Toledo, 34 to 32.

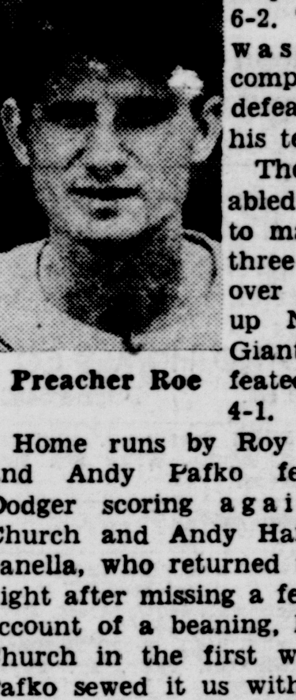
Preacher Roe Notches 10th Straight Win

Posts No. 22 Of Year Over Phillies, 6-2

BROOKLYN, Sept. 23 (AP)—Preacher Roe pitched the Brooklyn Dodgers a step nearer the National League pennant today as he turned back the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-2. The triumph was Roe's 22nd compared to two defeats and also his tenth straight.



Preacher Roe

The victory enabled the Dodgers to maintain their three-game lead over the runner-up New York Giants who defeated Boston, 4-1.

Home runs by Roy Campanella and Andy Pafko featured the Dodger scoring against Bubba Church and Andy Hansen. Campanella, who returned to duty last night after missing a few games on account of a beaning, homered off Church in the first with one on. Pafko sewed it us with a two-run homer in the eighth off Hansen.

The victory marked the second time this year that Roe has won ten straight games. The veteran lefthander began the season with ten consecutive victories.

A crowd of 19,135 saw the National League's top pitcher become the first Brooklyn southpaw to win 22 games since Nap Rucker in 1911. Having lost only two games, Roe also raised his own all-time senior loop percentage record to .917.

Campanella led the Dodgers 12-hit attack with four safeties including his 32nd homer with one on in the first inning. The circuit clout was one more than the All-Star catcher hit last year and gave him 100 RBI's for the first time in his career. Box:

Yanks Increase Lead As Raschi Masters Bosox

Vic Wins 20th, 6-1; Mize's Clutch Hit Breaks Tie In 7th

BOSTON, Sept. 23 (AP)—Big Vic Raschi manhandled Boston in the tight spots today to bolster the pennant hopes of the league-leading New York Yankees with a 6-1 victory, his 20th of the season.

The husky righthander wriggled out of serious trouble in the early innings, stamped out a threat in the sixth and rode home to his third straight 20-win year on a blast of 14 Yank hits.

Snarled in a 1-1 tie with Lefty Chuck Stobbs for six innings, Raschi scrambled home free on a three-run outburst in the seventh. Pinchhitter Johnny Mize delivered a clutch single that broke the deadlock.

Hank Bauer and Jerry Coleman each had three hits, and Mickey Mantle, Gil McDougald and Mize two each in this final road game of the Yank season.

After the three run rally in the seventh off Stobbs and Ellis Kinder, making his 61st appearance, the Yanks tore into Ray Scarborough for another pair in the eighth. That finished the Red Sox, in their final home appearance before 28,712 fans.

Raschi's deliberate eight-hit job assured the Yanks of a comfortable lead as they head home to finish the season with six more games, five against Boston. Tomorrow is an off day for both the Yanks and Indians but both play Tuesday—New York against Philadelphia and Cleveland at Chicago in a night game.

By his determined performance of great clutch pitching Raschi gave the Yanks two 20-game winners for the first time since 1937, when both Lefty Gomez and Red Ruffing crashed the exclusive club.

Lefty Ed Lopat is the Yanks other 20-game winner this season.

Although this was only the Yankee second win in 11 Fenway Park starts and their sixth in 17 meetings with Boston, they finished with a creditable road mark of 42-34. One of the 77 away games had to be transferred to the Yankee Stadium.

Joe DiMaggio's chief contribution to this important victory was a sensational running stab of Fred Hatfield's fly in short center in the second. Joe barely plucked the ball off the grass tops only some 20 feet on the grass behind second base. Gil McDougald also contributed a fine stop of a hard smash by Walt Dropo in the fourth, probably saving a run.

Elated at foiling the Fenway jinx by taking two of three in their final visit, Yankee manager Casey Stengel picked Lefty Bob Kuzava (11-6) to face the Athletics in the Stadium Tuesday afternoon. Bob had beaten the A's twice, once with Washington and one as a Yank.

The loss left only a mathematical chance for Boston. Now five back with eight to play, any combination of three Yanks wins or Red Sox defeats would apply the final ax. Box:

Turnesa Wins Reading Open

Jim's Total Is 280, Edges Jack Burke

READING, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP)—Jim Turnesa, one of six golfing brothers, shot a three over par 74 today to win the $15,000 Reading Open Golf Tournament with a 72 hole total of 280 at the Berkleigh Country Club. It was his first major tournament win of the year.

Turnesa's four round total was four under par for the 6,600 yard layout. It gave him a two stroke edge over Jack Burke, Jr., of Houston, Tex., who finished with a brilliant 36-32—68, three under par.

Tied for third spot with 285's were Skee Riegel from Tulsa, Okla. and Jimmy Clark, 30-year-old blond from Laguna Beach, Calif. Riegel posted a 33-36—69, his best round of the tournament, on the last tour over the 6,600 Berkleigh layout. Clark shot a 36-39—75, four over par, his worst round.

One stroke behind them were Ted Kroll, New Hartford, N. Y.; Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., and bulky Clayton Heafner, of Charlotte, N. C.

Ed (Porky) Oliver from Lemont, Ill., who had a 296 for the 72 holes, disqualified himself after finishing in the money with 296. He reported he played a ball that was out of bounds on the 10th hole.

Buddy Lutz of Reading, Pa., led the amateur field with a total of 300. He shot a 37-39—76 on the final round.

Lloyd Mangrum, one of the pre-tournament favorites, finished with a 39-35—74 for a total of 290, good for $500.

Papermakers Wipe Out 4-Run Deficit, Take 2-0 Lead In Series

Westvaco put on a storybook finish in the ninth inning yesterday at Memorial Park, Westernport, to defeat the Hyndman Firemen by the score of 8-7 and moved within one game of winning the championship of the Bi-State Baseball League.

Trailing 7-3 going into the final frame, the Papermakers chased five runs across the platter to pull the ball game out of the fire.

Three Successive Homers

In winning the ball game on a garrison finish, the Westvaco Club established a new record for the tri-state area when the first three batsmen in the ninth inning smashed home runs in succession. "Bud" Mosser, first up, hammered the ball over the left field barrier. Joe Inskeep smacked the pellet over the right field fence, driving Shields to the showers. Then Leo Ryan picked out one of Relief Pitcher Geist's offerings and banged it over the left field fence for the third round-tripper.

Marsh flied to right field. "Woody" Woodson was safe on an error by first sacker Harry Minnicks. Manager Frank Patrone beat out a slow roller between the mound and first base, sending Woodson to third. Lang beat out a bunt, scoring Woodson with the run that knotted the count at 7-7. Lauber replaced Geist on the hill for Hyndman. Sloey threw the ball over Lauber's head and Patrone advanced to third from where he scored the winning marker when Muir slapped a single to right.

Westvaco outhit the Firemen, 12-11, and scored its second straight win in the best-of-five final playoff series. Bobby Raines twirled Westvaco to a 7-3 decision over the Pennsylvanians in the series opener on Saturday at Hyndman.

Woodson Fans Nine

Woodson went the route for Westvaco and struck out nine, walked four and hit one batsman.

Mosser, Woodson and Inskeep of Westvaco and Deremer, Sloey, Stair and Minnicks of Hyndman led the batsmen with two blows each.

The third game is set for Saturday at 3:30 p. m. in Westernport. If a fourth game is necessary it will be played next Sunday at Hyndman. Score:

Packers Down Redskins, 14-7

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 23 (INS) — The Green Bay Packers scored the tie-breaking touchdown in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter today as they beat the Washington Redskins, 14 to 7, in an exhibition football game at Alexandria.

About 7500 fans saw Jack Cloud account for the winning tally on a three-yard line buck only minutes after the Redskins had gotten their lone touchdown on a 31-yard pass play from Harry Gilmer to Hugh Taylor.

The Packers had scored first on a 67-yard march that followed the opening kickoff of the game. Jug Girard went over on a 19-yard pass from Bob Thomason.

The game was played in honor of the memory of Jack Tulloch, late managing editor of the Alexandria Gazette.

St. Paul Wins, 7-5

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 23—(INS)—St. Paul came from behind today to stay in the running for the American Association playoff championship by defeating Milwaukee 7 to 5 in St. Paul.

The Saints trailed 5 to 0 in the seventh inning and appeared out of the game until they rallied with three runs in the last of the seventh and four more in the eighth. The rally was helped along by two home runs in the eighth.

Milwaukee still leads in the playoff, three games to two, with the teams scheduled to meet in Milwaukee tomorrow night.

Steelers Trim Bears In Exhibition Game

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23—(INS)—A hard-charging Pittsburgh Steeler line messed up the Chicago Bears' passing attack before 22,000 fans today and dealt the Mighty Monsters of the Midway a 23-21 exhibition beating in Pittsburgh.

It was the first time a Steeler team has beaten Coach George Halas' eleven since 1939 when the Bears dropped a 10-9 decision in an exhibition game.

Flings 5 TD Passes

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 23 (INS)—Don Logue, who used to do it for University of Arkansas, today passed the San Diego Naval Training Center to a rugged, 42 to 28, football victory over Loyola University of Los Angeles.

A crowd of 8,000 saw Loyola's home opener at the Pasadena Rose Bowl.

Logue, who threw five touchdown passes in the course of a busy afternoon, led a navy attack that produced five last-half touchdowns and completely erased a 21 to 7 Loyola lead.

MSP Is Swamped By Petersburg

Merchants Win, 25-3; Wally Easton Fans 14

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 23—Petersburg's Merchants unloosed a 20-hit barrage today to crush the Medium Security Prison nine in the opener of a best-of-three games series for the trophy being offered by the Alleghany Baseball League. The score was 25-3.

The league's pennant winners rallied for six runs in the second, a like number of tallies in the sixth and 10 in the 7th frame.

The visitors' only tallies were the result of home runs. Cline hit a four-bagger with one aboard in the first and Brown socked a four-master in the 8th.

Wally Eaton limited MSP to five hits and struck out 14 batsmen. He also drove in four runs with a triple and single. "Hank" Denault, Gerald Dahmer and Marshall Combs collected four hits each for the locals. Denault hit a two-run homer in the 6th, three singles and batted in five runs. Combs smacked a triple, double and two singles and Dahmer pounded out four one-base knocks.

Huttonsville will be the scene of the second game next Sunday at 2 p. m. The score:

AHS Defeated, 7-0; Play Hawks Friday, Potomac State Wins

Allegany High School's surprising 7-0 defeat at the hands of an unheralded and unsung Alumni eleven Saturday night before 1,000 persons at the local stadium left Ridgeley High School as the only undefeated and untied team of the 16 high school elevens functioning in the tri-state area.

Ridgeley and Allegany are scheduled to clash Friday at 8 p. m. at the stadium.

Bruce Anderson scored the only td of the game as the Alumni triumphed Saturday night. Johnny Cox place kicked the extra point.

Potomac State scored its second straight win of the season by the score of 13-0 on Saturday, defeating George Washington University's "B" team at Keyser. Ench and Niedbala scored the Catamounts' touchdowns and Reed made an extra point from placement.

Packers Down Redskins, 14-7

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 23 (INS) — The Green Bay Packers scored the tie-breaking touchdown in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter today as they beat the Washington Redskins, 14 to 7, in an exhibition football game at Alexandria.

About 7500 fans saw Jack Cloud account for the winning tally on a three-yard line buck only minutes after the Redskins had gotten their lone touchdown on a 31-yard pass play from Harry Gilmer to Hugh Taylor.

The Packers had scored first on a 67-yard march that followed the opening kickoff of the game. Jug Girard went over on a 19-yard pass from Bob Thomason.

The game was played in honor of the memory of Jack Tulloch, late managing editor of the Alexandria Gazette.

St. Paul Wins, 7-5

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 23—(INS) —St. Paul came from behind today to stay in the running for the American Association playoff championship by defeating Milwaukee 7 to 5 in St. Paul.

The Saints trailed 5 to 0 in the seventh inning and appeared out of the game until they rallied with three runs in the last of the seventh and four more in the eighth. The rally was helped along by two home runs in the eighth.

Milwaukee still leads in the playoff, three games to two, with the teams scheduled to meet in Milwaukee tomorrow night.

Steelers Trim Bears In Exhibition Game

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23—(INS)—A hard-charging Pittsburgh Steeler line messed up the Chicago Bears' passing attack before 22,000 fans today and dealt the Mighty Monsters of the Midway a 23-21 exhibition beating in Pittsburgh.

It was the first time a Steeler team has beaten Coach George Halas' eleven since 1939 when the Bears dropped a 10-9 decision in an exhibition game.

Flings 5 TD Passes

PASADENA, Cal., Sept. 23 (INS) —Don Logue, who used to do it for University of Arkansas, today passed the San Diego Naval Training Center to a rugged, 42 to 28, football victory over Loyola University of Los Angeles.

A crowd of 8,000 saw Loyola's home opener at the Pasadena Rose Bowl.

Logue, who threw five touchdown passes in the course of a busy afternoon, led a navy attack that produced five last-half touchdowns and completely erased a 21 to 7 Loyola lead.

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 23—Petersburg's Merchants unloosed a 20-hit barrage today to crush the Medium Security Prison nine in the opener of a best-of-three games series for the trophy being offered by the Alleghany Baseball League. The score was 25-3.

Allegany High School's surprising 7-0 defeat at the hands of an unheralded and unsung Alumni eleven Saturday night before 1,000 persons at the local stadium left Ridgeley High School as the only undefeated and untied team of the 16 high school elevens functioning in the tri-state area.

Ridgeley and Allegany are scheduled to clash Friday at 8 p. m. at the stadium.

Bruce Anderson scored the only td of the game as the Alumni triumphed Saturday night. Johnny Cox place kicked the extra point.

Potomac State scored its second straight win of the season by the score of 13-0 on Saturday, defeating George Washington University's "B" team at Keyser. Ench and Niedbala scored the Catamounts' touchdowns and Reed made an extra point from placement.

Old But Shiny Antique Cars Arrive Here In Glidden Tour

Parade Through Cumberland Today

With brass trim a-glitter and motors chugging faithfully, a caravan of antique autos rolled into Cumberland from Pittsburgh, Pa., Sunday on the first leg of a five-day tour.

The trek is the annual revival of the Glidden Tours, which were fashionable in the early 1900's.

Nearly 125 cars, as shiny and bright as the day they were built, are driven by tourists determined to complete the trip of several hundred miles ending in the Pocono Mountains of Eastern Pennsylvania.

The caravan is led by opera and radio singer, James Melton, president of the Antique Automobile Club of America. He is driving a 1907 Rolls-Royce that originally sold for $20,000.

After an overnight stop here, the elderly hot rods will move to Bedford, Pa., today for two days of festivities, including a Gay Nineties ball and a Gibson Girl fashion show.

Travelers Entertained

Last night, the travelers were entertained at a dinner and dance at Ali Ghan Country Club. They were welcomed by Harold M. Smith, former Chamber of Commerce manager.

Speakers included Colonel Augustus Post, New York, one of the original members of the American Automobile Association and director of the 1905, 1906 and 1907 Glidden tours.

Melton, who arrived in Cumberland late after his ancient Rolls developed mechanical trouble, got here in time to speak. George M. Hughes, Havertown, Pa., this year's tour director, and Leslie R. Henry, his assistant, also spoke.

The antique cars were to spend the night in garages near the State Armory, while the older ones were to be housed inside the building.

Parade Today

At about 9 a. m. today they'll start forming at the Armory for a parade through town at 10 a. m. Route of march is South Centre to Baltimore to South Mechanic to Williams to South Centre then through The Narrows and on to Hyndman and Bedford, Pa.

The tour will wind up Thursday at Sky Top, Pa.

A car must be 25 years old to be in the tour. Some of the cars are nearly 50.

Melton's Rolls, one of the more than 100 old cars he owns, was driven here from Westport, Conn. Complete with oil side lamps and carbide headlights, the car has a collector's value far eceeding its original price.

But it has its shortcomings. It

Garrett Man, 62, Dies After Being Struck By Car

A 62-year-old Garrett County man died Saturday night in Garrett Memorial Hospital, Oakland, of injuries sustained when he was struck by a car last Sunday.

State Trooper Robert D. Henline said the victim was Thomas Spiker, RFD 1, Oakland.

Henline said Spiker was struck by a car driven by A. I. Snyder, 38, of Horseshoe Run, W. Va., at about 7 p. m. last Sunday as he walked along Route 219 about seven miles south of Oakland.

Snyder told police he was blinded by the headlights of an oncoming car and failed to see Spiker in time.

Henline said Spiker died Saturday night of a fractured skull. No charges have been placed against Snyder.

Youths Are Hurt In Car Crash

Five Pendleton County, W. Va., youths were injured, one of them critically, yesterday afternoon when the car in which they were riding went out of control on the Franklin Pike and struck a telephone pole.

Admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, in a critical condition was Merrill Champ, 17, Mouth of Seneca.

Also admitted to the hospital were Martha Self, 15, Smoke Hole; Zola Self, 17, Smoke Hole; Roosevelt Miller, 19, near Mouth of Seneca, and Marian Alt, 18, Smoke Hole. None of them were believed to be seriously hurt.

State Police Cpl. Frank H. Tribett, Petersburg, said the accident occurred about 2 p. m. on U. S. Route 220, near the Blue Jay Station, when the car operated by Miller apparently went out of control on a winding curve, ran off the road and then swung back across the highway and against the pole.

Another passenger, Miller's brother, was uninjured in the crash.

Scout Camp Is Formally Dedicated

400 Attend Event Near Oldtown

About 400 backers of Camp Potomac attended the formal dedication of the new Potomac Council Boy Scout camp near Oldtown yesterday.

Principal speaker was James Miller, member of the executive board of the Washington County Council and vice president of Hagerstown Shoe Company.

E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va., and of Potomac Council, was master of ceremonies.

Rev. Lawrence P. Landrigan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Representatives of all branches of Boy Scouting, from Cubs to Explorer Scouts, presented a pageant to famaliarize the camp's sponsors with Scout activities.

After a tour of the camp grounds, guests sat down to a barbecued beef and ham dinner prepared by Nello N. Caparossi, Cumberland Country Club chef.

Guests also included officials of local governments in the six counties of the Council — Allegany and Garrett in Maryland, and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy and Grant in West Virginia.

The camp, which began its first season with its new facilities this summer, is rated as one of the finest Scout centers in the East. It now has a dining hall, trading post and an artificial lake.

Yesterday's program was arranged by Dr. Thomas G. Bess, Keyser, and Miles G. Thompson, Sr., LaVale, associate chairman of the Camp Potomac Development Fund.

Mine Firm Balks At UMW Contract

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23 (AP) — Harry Gray, Somerset County strip coal mine operator, says if he signed a contract with the United Mine Workers Union, it would be an unfair labor practice.

"Not one of the men has signified a desire to join the UMW," said Gray. He employs about 50 miners.

The statement came after Gray received a letter from Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh attorney, urging him to sign with the union. Margiotti is owner of the Denise Coal Co., which leases coal property to Gray.

In a letter to Margiotti, Gray said:

"I believe the Gray Contracting and Engineering Co., upon the execution of a contract (with the UMW) would be compelling its employes to become members of the UMW, of which the majority of the employes are not now members, even if it is against their will and desire."

Gray declared he is "in general sympathetic with the purposes and ideals of the UMW and other labor organizations," but he added the situation "concerns my very existence and livelihood as well as the existence and livelihood of my family."

Gray explained he could not bind himself to pay 30 cents a ton into the UMW welfare fund, asserting this is more than he profits from the sale of a ton of coal.

Presbyterian Church Will Build Addition

Construction To Cost $200,000

The congregation of First Presbyterian Church yesterday authorized the construction of a $200,000 church house adjoining the 76-year-old edifice on Washington Street.

Razing of the present church house will get under way today, in charge of the John I. Vandegrift Company, which was awarded the contract for erecting the building.

The decision to proceed with the work on the church house was made yesterday morning at a congregational meeting following the morning worship service.

Plans for the structure were prepared by the A. Hamme firm, church architects, of York, Pa.

The exterior of the church house will be constructed of native stone from the Narrows, of the same stone used in the construction of the church edifice 75 years ago.

Plan Fund Drive

Slated is a full basement and two floors, to house the educational department. Space will be provided for a dining room with a capacity of 350 persons, an office for Rev. Seth C. Morrow, who became pastor of the church in January, and for the church secretary.

Some five years ago, the congregation, which now numbers about 1,000 members, raised some $50,000 in a drive for a church house and several years previously purchased the building which will be demolished to make way for the addition.

The congregation will open a drive next month for funds to finance the construction.

Was Formed In 1810

First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1810 and held services for some time in a church belonging to the Lutherans in this city.

Between 1817 and 1825, a brick church was started on Fort Hill for the joint use of the Episcopals and Presbyterians, but never completed.

During the early 1840's, the congregation built a brick church on Liberty Street which was used as a hospital by the Federal Government during the Civil War.

The cornerstone of the present church, one of the most imposing stone buildings in the Cumberland area, was laid on June 6, 1875.

The steeple of the present church was added in 1892.

Home To Be Built On Cecil Street

Clyde S. Slider, 811 Louisiana Avenue, has secured a permit to build a story and one-half frame home at 813 Cecil Street. Cost is estimated at $5,000.

The house will be 29 by 30 feet and will be built on a 36 by 60 foot lot.

Slider received permission from the Board of Zoning Appeals for the structure which will have less side yard space than required by the city zoning laws.

The ordinance requires that in Residential B sections, one fifth of the lot should be in side yards, with at least five feet on one side.

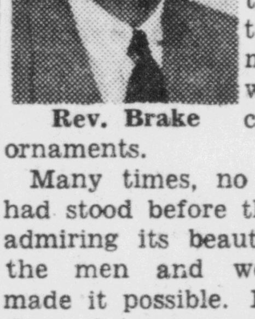
Today's Sermonette

By REV. DONALD F. BRAKE

Today's sermonette is a digest of a sermon preached at St. John's Lutheran Church by the pastor, Rev. Donald F. Brake. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Temples Of God

In viewing the glorious works and places of the past we would likely stop at Ephesus, in Asia Minor, for there we would find the spot where once stood one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. The temple of Diana, with its great size and beauty, was acclaimed as being one of the greatest works produced by man. It had been built from the gifts of the people and trimmed in gold taken from the melting pot into which many had cast their golden ornaments.



Rev. Brake

Many times, no doubt, St. Paul had stood before that great temple, admiring its beauty and admiring the men and women who had made it possible. But, as he stood there he was reminded of other temples, far greater than the one dedicated to Diana, yet they had never been listed among the seven wonders of the ancient world. To the Apostle Paul every human being is a temple, and this idea he passed down through the ages when he said "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?"

He wished to convey the truth that although many are poor and despised they are far better than even the magnificent temple dedicated to a pagan goddess. The glory of the world is not in thrones and temples and palaces, but in the souls of those who have the glory and majesty of God. There is a Hindoo legend about a king who hired a master builder and sent him out to build the most beautiful palace in the world, and gave him a large sum of money to do the work. When the builder arrived in the area he found that the people were dying of starvation. He used all of his own money and the king's too and saved hundreds of lives. But, when the king heard of what

MRS. LAVENIA NIXON

Oldtown's Oldest Citizen Is 88 Years Young Today

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Countless numbers of people travel the girth of the globe in search of knowedge and peace of mind.

But an elderly lady of 88 years has hardly left her modest home in Oldtown, yet is probably richer in peace of mind and soul than any world traveler.

Lavenia Nixon is celebrating her birthday quietly today in a six-room whitewashed home nestled among a few shade trees. Seen sitting rocking on the front porch she tends to give one a feeling of complete happiness and satisfaction.

She was born in Oldtown, September 24, 1863, and has been a lifelong resident of the community. Many civic improvements and much progress have been witnessed by her through the years. Lavenia, as she is referred to by neighbors, is quite active and manages to move about the house and yard with ease. An occasional trip to the springhouse for cool water and "shooing the chickens" to their roost are still daily chores she performs.

Keeps Very Active

This past summer she helped whitewash the fence in front of the residence. A popular pastime is making quilts and she possesses many fine examples of her workmanship.

Her parents, Christopher and Mary Ann Barth, came to this country from Germany. Her father owned a nine-room brick house which still stands in the Allegany County community. It was built in 1811. The house, in good condition was later acquired by Lavenia after her marriage to Harrison Nixon, a farmer who lived in the Oldtown area until his death about 36 years ago.

When Lavenia owned the large brick house she kept boarders and roomers. A tannery, located near the house, did a thriving business at the turn of the century. With the coming of the Western Maryland Railway into this section, right-of-way was purchased by the railroad in 1904 and the tannery torn down.

Remembers Cresap

She recalls the acquaintance of Martin Cresap who ran a grist mill in the Oldtown area many years ago. Her father, she observed, at one time owned the oldest house in Allegany County, built in the 17th Century.

A staunch Methodist, Lavenia is visited occasionally by Rev. Anderson of the Methodist Circuit, who talks with her on her spiritual life.

She stays with two nieces, Belle Rickenburg and Mathilda Rickenburg, in the modest log house, which itself is well over a century old.

Mrs. Nixon had two children, now both dead.

Although she had a slight stroke recently, the oldest Oldtown resident is on the road to recovery. Her many friends wish her a happy birthday and many happy returns.

Three Record Lows Shown In State Mortality

Tuberculosis Deaths Drop 15.7 Per Cent

The mortality for the second quarter of this year exhibited three all time lows for tuberculosis, syphilis and maternal mortality, according to a report by the Maryland State Department of Health.

At the same time, the birth rate in Maryland rose from 19.4 per thousand persons in 1950, to 21.8 per thousand in 1951.

Mineral Co. Boy Admits Five Fires

Arrest Follows Probe By Polic Of Two States

West Virginia authorities moved a step nearer solution of a year-long arson wave in the Piedmont area with the arrest Saturday of a 16-year-old Mineral County boy.

Cpl. O. G. Webley and Trooper Frank W. Bowley of the Keyser State Police detachment said the boy has admitted setting five fires since August 30. Four warrants charging arson have been sworn against him.

Police said, however, that they felt other arsonists are still to be caught. Still unsolved are two or three fires in Mineral County and perhaps half a dozen across the Potomac River in Maryland.

Had Been Suspected

The youth's arrest Saturday morning followed several weeks of investigation, during which the boy was under almost constant surveillance.

Police said he denied knowledge of the fires until he was given a lie detector test by State Police Sgt. N. C. Reger of Charleston, W. Va.

They said the youth told them he set the fires because he "liked to watch things burn."

He admitted starting these fires:

Bennett Mine, Piedmont Hill, August 30. This blaze destroyed a blacksmith shop and tool shed and damaged two other buildings.

Pasture on the farm of Harry Welton, September 4.

Television tower atop Piedmont Hill, September 5. The attempt was unsuccessful, but damaged the tower.

Farmhouse occupied by Isaac Shockey on the Welton farm, September 5. A bed was destroyed in this fire.

Television tower on Piedmont Hill, September 10. The tower was destroyed in the second blaze.

Police said the boy told them he was alone in starting each of the fires. He denied setting any blazes before the mine fire August 30.

Released To Parents

Police released the youth in custody of his parents. He will be questioned today in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Donald C. Hott.

The West Virginia youth was the sixth person to be arrested in recent months in connection with arson in Mineral County and the Georges Creek area.

Four Westernport residents are serving prison terms totaling 108 years for vandalism including fires, explosions and a train wreck.

Warnick Takes Lie Test

On Friday, Floyd C. Warnick, 35-year-old Piedmont World War II veteran, reportedly admitted starting seven recent fires in the same area.

Maryland State Police Trooper Milton G. Hart took Warnick to Keyser Saturday to undergo lie detector tests because of his alleged admission that he started one fire in Mineral County. He was returned to jail here to await trial.

Warnick's arrest came after weeks of investigation by West Virginia and Maryland State Police and local authorities in Westernport, Piedmont and Luke.

Six Agencies Co-operate

West Virginia authorities had questioned Warnick some time ago but released him for lack of conclusive evidence. At the same time, they tipped off Maryland police that Warnick could have been implicated in Georges Creek fires. Police here said they had suspected him.

Trooper Hart and Special Agent H. B. Clark of the Western Maryland Railway headed the Maryland investigation. Assisting were Chief of Police Burza Hanlin and Officer James Griffith of Westernport; Chief of Police James Harrison and Officer Eldon Saville of Piedmont, and Officer Joseph Wilkes of Luke.

The Weather

A stiff breeze accompanied the beginning of autumn yesterday carrying with it colored leaves falling from the trees. Cool temperatures were warmed slightly by a bright sun in the afternoon, but the thermometer still only climbed to the 70 degree mark. Constitution Park's weather station reported the high temperature as 70 degrees, the low as 60, and at 8 p. m. the mercury remained at 60 degrees. Rainfall was recorded as .01 of an inch while humidity at 6 o'clock last night was 53 per cent. Forecast for today is increasing cloudiness with moderate temperatures.

Hagerstown Narrows Cumberland's Lead As Second City Of State

By HARRY WARNER, JR.

Staff Write for the Morning Herald

HAGERSTOWN, Sept. 23 (AP) — Hagerstown's population is catching up on Cumberland's because of the stork and "flying boxcars."

The 1940 census showed Cumberland 6,992 persons bigger than Hagerstown. The gap narrowed to 1,410 residents in the 1950 census, whose official figures give Cumberland 37,679 and Hagerstown 36,260.

Hagerstown is threatening to become the second largest incorporated city in Maryland partly because the birth rate has reached remarkable heights since the end of the war. During the five full years since the end of the war — 1946 through 1950—8,874 births occurred in Washington County, and only 4,033 persons died. That means 4,841 more births than deaths, and about half of the county's population lives in Hagerstown.

Fairchild Aircraft Division grew into a major industry during the same decade. Before World War Two began, its employment was numbered in the hundreds. Employment now stands around 6,000 persons. At last reports, Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation had some $175,000,000 in unfilled orders, indicating that the local plant will be busy turning out transport planes for the Air Force for quite a while.

More migration to the Hagerstown area may be coming soon. A huge housing project at Camp Ritchie and the mysterious underground communications center just north of there, in Raven Rock Mountain, may result in thousands of families moving to this general area. Many of them would naturally wind up in Hagerstown, only a dozen miles distant.

Hagerstonians stoutly maintain that they're the second largest incorporated city in the state right now, except in a legal sense. Hagerstown's city limits are much more compact than Cumberland's. As a result, 2,153 people live in an unincorporated town called Halfway, just southwest of Hagerstown.

It got its name because it used to be the halfway stop between Hagerstown and Williamsport for the trolley. But it has grown so much that now theres no open country between Hagerstown and Halfway. Some Halfway residents have advocated amalgamation with Hagerstown.

Principal speaker was James Miller, member of the executive board of the Washington County Council and vice president of Hagerstown Shoe Company.

E. E. Church, president of Potomac State School, Keyser, W. Va., and of Potomac Council, was master of ceremonies.

Rev. Lawrence P. Landrigan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

After a tour of the camp grounds, guests sat down to a barbecued beef and ham dinner prepared by Nello N. Caparossi, Cumberland Country Club chef.

Guests also included officials of local governments in the six counties of the Council — Allegany and Garrett in Maryland, and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy and Grant in West Virginia.

The camp, which began its first season with its new facilities this summer, is rated as one of the finest Scout centers in the East. It now has a dining hall, trading post and an artificial lake.

Mine Firm Balks At UMW Contract

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 23 (AP) — Harry Gray, Somerset County strip coal mine operator, says if he signed a contract with the United Mine Workers Union, it would be an unfair labor practice.

"Not one of the men has signified a desire to join the UMW," said Gray. He employs about 50 miners.

The statement came after Gray received a letter from Charles J. Margiotti, Pittsburgh attorney, urging him to sign with the union. Margiotti is owner of the Denise Coal Co., which leases coal property to Gray.

In a letter to Margiotti, Gray said:

"I believe the Gray Contracting and Engineering Co., upon the execution of a contract (with the UMW) would be compelling its employes to become members of the UMW, of which the majority of the employes are not now members, even if it is against their will and desire."

Gray declared he is "in general sympathetic with the purposes and ideals of the UMW and other labor organizations," but he added the situation "concerns my very existence and livelihood as well as the existence and livelihood of my family."

Gray explained he could not bind himself to pay 30 cents a ton into the UMW welfare fund, asserting this is more than he profits from the sale of a ton of coal.

Presbyterian Church Will Build Addition

Construction To Cost $200,000

The congregation of First Presbyterian Church yesterday authorized the construction of a $200,000 church house adjoining the 76-year-old edifice on Washington Street.

Razing of the present church house will get under way today, in charge of the John I. Vandegrift Company, which was awarded the contract for erecting the building.

The decision to proceed with the work on the church house was made yesterday morning at a congregational meeting following the morning worship service.

Plans for the structure were prepared by the A. Hamme firm, church architects, of York, Pa.

The exterior of the church house will be constructed of native stone from the Narrows, of the same stone used in the construction of the church edifice 75 years ago.

Plan Fund Drive

Slated is a full basement and two floors, to house the educational department. Space will be provided for a dining room with a capacity of 350 persons, an office for Rev. Seth C. Morrow, who became pastor of the church in January, and for the church secretary.

Some five years ago, the congregation, which now numbers about 1,000 members, raised some $50,000 in a drive for a church house and several years previously purchased the building which will be demolished to make way for the addition.

The congregation will open a drive next month for funds to finance the construction.

Was Formed In 1810

First Presbyterian Church was organized in 1810 and held services for some time in a church belonging to the Lutherans in this city.

Between 1817 and 1825, a brick church was started on Fort Hill for the joint use of the Episcopals and Presbyterians, but never completed.

During the early 1840's, the congregation built a brick church on Liberty Street which was used as a hospital by the Federal Government during the Civil War.

The cornerstone of the present church, one of the most imposing stone buildings in the Cumberland area, was laid on June 6, 1875.

The steeple of the present church was added in 1892.

Home To Be Built On Cecil Street

Clyde S. Slider, 811 Louisiana Avenue, has secured a permit to build a story and one-half frame home at 813 Cecil Street. Cost is estimated at $5,000.

The house will be 29 by 30 feet and will be built on a 36 by 60 foot lot.

Slider received permission from the Board of Zoning Appeals for the structure which will have less side yard space than required by the city zoning laws.

The ordinance requires that in Residential B sections, one fifth of the lot should be in side yards, with at least five feet on one side.

Today's Sermonette

By REV. DONALD F. BRAKE

Today's sermonette is a digest of a sermon preached at St. John's Lutheran Church by the pastor, Rev. Donald F. Brake. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Temples Of God

In viewing the glorious works and places of the past we would likely stop at Ephesus, in Asia Minor, for there we would find the spot where once stood one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. The temple of Diana, with its great size and beauty, was acclaimed as being one of the greatest works produced by man. It had been built from the gifts of the people and trimmed in gold taken from the melting pot into which many had cast their golden ornaments.

Rev. Brake

Many times, no doubt, St. Paul had stood before that great temple, admiring its beauty and admiring the men and women who had made it possible. But, as he stood there he was reminded of other temples, far greater than the one dedicated to Diana, yet they had never been listed among the seven wonders of the ancient world. To the Apostle Paul every human being is a temple, and this idea he passed down through the ages when he said "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?"

He wished to convey the truth that although many are poor and despised they are far better than even the magnificent temple dedicated to a pagan goddess. The glory of the world is not in thrones and temples and palaces, but in the souls of those who have the glory and majesty of God. There is a Hindoo legend about a king who hired a master builder and sent him out to build the most beautiful palace in the world, and gave him a large sum of money to do the work. When the builder arrived in the area he found that the people were dying of starvation. He used all of his own money and the king's too and saved hundreds of lives. But, when the king heard of what

Oldtown's Oldest Citizen Is 88 Years Young Today

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Countless numbers of people travel the girth of the globe in search of knowedge and peace of mind.

But an elderly lady of 88 years has hardly left her modest home in Oldtown, yet is probably richer in peace of mind and soul than any world traveler.

Lavenia Nixon is celebrating her birthday quietly today in a six-room whitewashed home nestled among a few shade trees. Seen sitting rocking on the front porch she tends to give one a feeling of complete happiness and satisfaction.

She was born in Oldtown, September 24, 1863, and has been a lifelong resident of the community. Many civic improvements and much progress have been witnessed by her through the years. Lavenia, as she is referred to by neighbors, is quite active and manages to move about the house and yard with ease. An occasional trip to the springhouse for cool water and "shooing the chickens" to their roost are still daily chores she performs.

Keeps Very Active

This past summer she helped whitewash the fence in front of the residence. A popular pastime is making quilts and she possesses many fine examples of her workmanship.

Her parents, Christopher and Mary Ann Barth, came to this country from Germany. Her father owned a nine-room brick house which still stands in the Allegany County community. It was built in 1811. The house, in good condition was later acquired by Lavenia after her marriage to Harrison Nixon, a farmer who lived in the Oldtown area until his death about 36 years ago.

When Lavenia owned the large brick house she kept boarders and roomers. A tannery, located near the house, did a thriving business at the turn of the century. With the coming of the Western Maryland Railway into this section, right-of-way was purchased by the railroad in 1904 and the tannery torn down.

Remembers Cresap

She recalls the acquaintance of Martin Cresap who ran a grist mill in the Oldtown area many years ago. Her father, she observed, at one time owned the oldest house in Allegany County, built in the 17th Century.

A staunch Methodist, Lavenia is visited occasionally by Rev. Anderson of the Methodist Circuit, who talks with her on her spiritual life.

She stays with two nieces, Belle Rickenburg and Mathilda Rickenburg, in the modest log house, which itself is well over a century old.

Mrs. Nixon had two children, now both dead.

Ross F. Shaw, member of the executive board of the Cresap Society in Oldtown, presented Lavenia Nixon with a surprise birthday cake and she has received numerous cards and presents congratulating her on her birthday.

Although she had a slight stroke recently, the oldest Oldtown resident is on the road to recovery. Her many friends wish her a happy birthday and many happy returns.

Police released the youth in custody of his parents. He will be questioned today in the office of Prosecuting Attorney Donald C. Hott.

The West Virginia youth was the sixth person to be arrested in recent months in connection with arson in Mineral County and the Georges Creek area.

Four Westernport residents are serving prison terms totaling 108 years for vandalism including fires, explosions and a train wreck.

Warnick Takes Lie Test

On Friday, Floyd C. Warnick, 35-year-old Piedmont World War II veteran, reportedly admitted starting seven recent fires in the same area.

Maryland State Police Trooper Milton G. Hart took Warnick to Keyser Saturday to undergo lie detector tests because of his alleged admission that he started one fire in Mineral County. He was returned to jail here to await trial.

Warnick's arrest came after weeks of investigation by West Virginia and Maryland State Police and local authorities in Westernport, Piedmont and Luke.

Six Agencies Co-operate

West Virginia authorities had questioned Warnick some time ago but released him for lack of conclusive evidence. At the same time, they tipped off Maryland police that Warnick could have been implicated in Georges Creek fires. Police here said they had suspected him.

Trooper Hart and Special Agent H. B. Clark of the Western Maryland Railway headed the Maryland investigation. Assisting were Chief of Police Burza Hanlin and Officer James Griffith of Westernport; Chief of Police James Harrison and Officer Eldon Saville of Piedmont, and Officer Joseph Wilkes of Luke.

Hagerstown Narrows Cumberland's Lead As Second City Of State

HAGERSTOWN, Sept. 23 (AP) — Hagerstown's population is catching up on Cumberland's because of the stork and "flying boxcars."

The 1940 census showed Cumberland 6,992 persons bigger than Hagerstown. The gap narrowed to 1,410 residents in the 1950 census, whose official figures give Cumberland 37,679 and Hagerstown 36,260.

Hagerstown is threatening to become the second largest incorporated city in Maryland partly because the birth rate has reached remarkable heights since the end of the war. During the five full years since the end of the war — 1946 through 1950—8,874 births occurred in Washington County, and only 4,033 persons died. That means 4,841 more births than deaths, and about half of the county's population lives in Hagerstown.

Fairchild Aircraft Division grew into a major industry during the same decade. Before World War Two began, its employment was numbered in the hundreds. Employment now stands around 6,000 persons. At last reports, Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation had some $175,000,000 in unfilled orders, indicating that the local plant will be busy turning out transport planes for the Air Force for quite a while.

More migration to the Hagerstown area may be coming soon. A huge housing project at Camp Ritchie and the mysterious underground communications center just north of there, in Raven Rock Mountain, may result in thousands of families moving to this general area. Many of them would naturally wind up in Hagerstown, only a dozen miles distant.

Hagerstonians stoutly maintain that they're the second largest incorporated city in the state right now, except in a legal sense. Hagerstown's city limits are much more compact than Cumberland's. As a result, 2,153 people live in an unincorporated town called Halfway, just southwest of Hagerstown.

It got its name because it used to be the halfway stop between Hagerstown and Williamsport for the trolley. But it has grown so much that now theres no open country between Hagerstown and Halfway. Some Halfway residents have advocated amalgamation with Hagerstown.
